Constantly working toward a decent educational environment for Palestine refugees, UNRWA operates one of the largest school systems in the Middle East, teaching over half a million children in over 700 schools and has been the main provider of primary education to Palestine refugees for more than 60 years. UNRWA's total procurement spend on educational goods and services in 2016 was $36.5m.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

Countries: Throughout this report, the terminology “country” or “countries” refers to countries and territories as defined by the Statistics Division of the United Nations Secretariat. In all, there are 240 countries and territories. The designations employed do not imply the expression of any opinion whatsoever on the part of the United Nations concerning the legal status of any country, territory, city or area or of its authorities, or concerning the delimitation of its frontiers or boundaries.

The assignment of countries or areas to specific groupings is for statistical convenience and does not imply any assumption regarding political or other affiliation of countries or territories by the United Nations.

Development Assistance Committee (DAC) Member Countries: A key forum of major bilateral donors, DAC Member Countries work together to increase the effectiveness of their common efforts to support sustainable development. The DAC consists of 28 Member Countries, as well as the European Union.

Developed countries; Developing countries; Economies in transition; and least developed countries: For analytical purposes, this report adopts the United Nations classification of the world into these broad categories. A composition of these groupings, provided in Annex 2, is intended to reflect the countries for which the United Nations provides financial/technical assistance. Please note that there is no established convention for the classification of countries within the United Nations system.

Goods: Objects of every kind and descriptions, including raw materials, products and equipment and objects in solid, liquid or gaseous form, and electricity, as well as services incidental to the supply of the goods if the value of those incidental services does not exceed that of the goods themselves.

Member States: In all, 193 sovereign states are recognized Members of the United Nations, and the United Nations General Assembly. Membership in the United Nations is open to all peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present Charter and, in the judgement of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.

Organizations of the United Nations system: Throughout this report, the terminology “United Nations organization(s)” refers to the United Nations, its subsidiary bodies – including separately administered funds and programmes – specialized agencies, research and training institutes, and other subsidiary entities.

Procurement: The acquisition through purchase or lease of real property, goods or other products (including intellectual property), works or services.

Services: Work, duty or labour performed by a contractor pursuant to a contract. Rendering of services may involve the associated provision of utilities or facilities if specified in the terms of the contract. Typical examples of services include security, catering, cleaning, travel management, event management, IT services, training, freight forwarding, and consulting.

Standard country and area code classification (M49): This report presents procurement statistics from countries and territories that follow the United Nations standard country, area and region classification as defined by the Statistics Division of the United Nations Secretariat for statistical use. For more information on this classification, please visit:

<https://unstats.un.org/unsd/methodology/m49/>

Sustainable procurement: Sustainable procurement practices integrate requirements, specifications and criteria that are compatible and in favour of the protection of the environment, of social progress and in support of economic development, namely by seeking resource efficiency, improving the quality of products and services and ultimately optimizing costs.

United Nations Global Compact: The UN Global Compact is a strategic policy initiative for businesses that are committed to aligning their operations and strategies with ten universally accepted principles in the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. By doing so, business, as a primary driver of globalization, can help ensure that markets, commerce, technology and finance advance in ways that benefit economies and societies everywhere .

United Nations Standard Products and Services Code (UNSPSC): The UNSPSC is a publicly available multi-sector standard for classification of goods and services. It is a four-level category hierarchy presented as an eight-digit number; the four-levels are segment, family, class and commodity. For the 2015 ASR, procurement of goods and services are reported on segment or family level. The UNSPSC is available in 10 languages.

INTRODUCTION

Introduction

The Annual Statistical Report on United Nations Procurement (ASR) provides an overview of the procurement of the United Nations system in support of its operations, projects and programmes. Procurement includes all acquisition through purchase or lease of real property, goods or other products (including intellectual property), works or services¹. The report provides a range of information about the categories of goods and services procured by the United Nations system, as well as the countries from which these goods and services were procured.

The 2016 version of the ASR is the 33rd edition of this publication, which was first presented in 1984. It was prepared by the Inter-Agency Procurement Services Office (IAPSO) of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and submitted to the 39th session of the General Assembly². By Resolution 39/220, the General Assembly established a need for regular reporting of this type of information and encouraged organizations of the United Nations system to participate in this important exercise. Since 2008, the report has been compiled by the United Nations Office for Project Services (UNOPS).

The Report includes statistics on procurement by UN organizations and by supplier/contractor country, including major purchase orders and contracts³ of United Nations organizations. This year, a new section on collaborative procurement has been incorporated into the report to highlight inter-agency procurement activities.

In the context of the UN's continued focus on sustainable development, the information conveyed by the ASR is also supplemented by sustainable procurement (SP) indicators. This is the 9th year that such information is reported in the ASR. The reporting framework, providing a baseline on which progress regarding the integration of SP in the UN system can be measured, has been continuously improved each year based on feedback from reporting organizations.

Since 2007, the ASR has examined procurement by UN organizations from suppliers that support the United Nations Global Compact⁴. This section of the report measures procurement by the UN system from suppliers that are United Nations Global Compact (UNGC) participants, and, as such, embrace universal principles in the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. The UN system does not give preferential treatment to UNGC signatories, but strongly encourage suppliers to subscribe and support its underpinning principles.

This publication has been produced by UNOPS on behalf of the organizations of the UN system. UNOPS is grateful to UN organizations for their continuous support and contributions that make this publication possible. UNOPS hopes that this report provides useful information on the broad spectrum of procurement by the UN system, and continually strives to improve and refine the report to better meet the expectations and objectives of the UN Member States, donors, the business community and UN organizations⁵.

Methodology

UNOPS relies on participating UN organizations in the compilation and reporting of the statistics. The 2016 report compiles information supplied by 39 United Nations organizations in total, which is an increase from 36 organizations that provided data for the 2015 report. This year, the ASR welcomes the first submissions from the International Organization for Migration (IOM), the United Nations Assistance to the Khmer Rouge Trials (UNAKRT), and the United Nations International Criminal Tribunal for the former Yugoslavia (UNICTY/MICT). IOM is not just new to the ASR but new to the UN System, as resolution 70/263 led to a decision in July 2016 making the organization a related organization of the UN.

The statistical data on procurement of goods and services for operational activities are requested from UN organizations in the form of data on purchase orders raised in 2016. The 2016 ASR uses an online data upload tool, which was deployed last year, to help simplify, optimize, and automate the data collection and compilation process from the data available in the information systems of the participating UN organizations. To facilitate the online submission of data, UNOPS provided templates, together with instructions and guidelines to complete the reporting requirements.

The country data in the category 'goods' is based on the country of supplier; the data in the category 'services' is based on the country of contractor. Moreover, purchase orders and contracts for services are reported by contract amount and not by expenditures incurred. Due to the technical limitation of the procurement systems in use, many UN organizations cannot report data based on country of origin of goods, or on actual expenditures at the present time.

To enable reporting on categories of goods and services across all UN organizations, the participating organizations are requested to provide procurement data based on the United Nations Standard Products and Services Code (UNSPSC®)⁶, or to provide mapping tables of their own internal category codes to the corresponding UNSPSC® code. To continue facilitating a more detailed reporting on categories, the participating organizations are encouraged to provide category data on UNSPSC® family level⁷. Further levels of details are available on ungm.org.

The categorization of countries and territories used in the ASR adhere to those used by the Statistics Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs. The report uses the following designations: developing countries, countries with economies in transition, developed countries and least developed countries. The designations 'developing,' 'in transition,' 'least developed' and 'developed' are intended for statistical convenience and do not express judgement about the level of development reached by a particular country or area in the development process.

In the past year, a number of UN organizations have completed the implementation of a new enterprise resource planning (ERP) system, named UMOJA, leading to improved capture of procurement data, which consequently affects reported procurement in certain categories⁸. The UN Procurement Division (UNPD) extracted and submitted procurement data on behalf of its affiliate agencies that implemented UMOJA. Each affiliate agency validated their data and is individually represented in the report. The agencies that are using UMOJA are the following: UNPD, the UN Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC), the UN Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP), the UN Economic and Social Commission for Western Asia (ESCWA), the International Trade Centre (ITC), UNAKRT, UNICTY/ MICT, the UN Office at Geneva (UNOG), the UN Office at Nairobi (UNON), and the UN Office at Vienna (UNOV), which as in previous years also includes procurement for the UN Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC). Furthermore, IOM was not able to provide vendor country information this year with their current ERP system and, as such, procurement from IOM's vendor countries are all reported under 'Unspecified' country/region/etc.

Finally, in addition to purchase order data, the ASR has in previous years reported the National Implementation Modality (NIM) – a distinct activity of UNDP. Starting with the ASR 2016, the

⁷ More information on UNSPSC® and UNSPSC® levels are available on www.unspsc.org

⁸ For ITC, travel was not included this year, as it does not go through UMOJA.

ASR will no longer be including NIM data in the report in order to improve the quality and comparability of the procurement data across all organizations. The impacts of the removal of NIM data in the report can be seen in certain analyses regarding non-developed countries where the NIM was used predominantly, as well as in the unspecified goods and services UNSPSC® categories where in both cases one will notice a drop in volume between 2015 and 2016. It is also important to note that the removal of the NIM data does not mean that UNDP has decreased its procurement volume between 2015 and 2016. In fact, if a comparison is done between the two years of non-NIM engagements, the organization increased its procurement volume by 16.6 per cent in 2016. More information on the NIM can be found in Annex IV.

United Nations reporting on sustainable procurement

As in previous years, to enable reporting on the extent to which UN organizations have begun to integrate sustainability considerations into their procurement processes, a voluntary online survey with 23 questions was also conducted in parallel with the data collection process for the Annual Statistical Report.

Recognizing some of the existing limitations in capturing sustainable procurement (SP) data⁹, the survey included both qualitative and quantitative metrics on SP, across the following key themes.

- 1. Policy and strategy
- 2. Integration in procurement processes
- 3. Internal capacity development
- 4. Supplier engagement
- 5. UN Global Compact (UNGC)

Following the inputs received from several organizations at the end of the previous reporting cycle, several questions in this year's survey were modified, while others were removed and new ones were added.

In total, 28 UN organizations responded to the SP survey, collectively representing 91 per cent of the total UN procurement spend for 2016¹⁰.

¹⁰ This does not imply that 91 per cent of all UN procurement included SP considerations in their processes.

The analysis presented in the SP section does not reflect any judgements on any individual organization's progress on SP. Rather it provides a snapshot of noteworthy trends within the UN system.

United Nations report on Global Compact

For the analysis of procurement from UNGC participants, purchase order (PO) data, organized by supplier name and country from all UN organizations that submitted data for the ASR, was cross-referenced with the list of UNGC participants, as of 31 December 2016. For the purpose of consistency with previous years reports, POs under $30,000 as well as POs for which the supplier's name was removed (e.g. for security reasons), were excluded from the analysis.

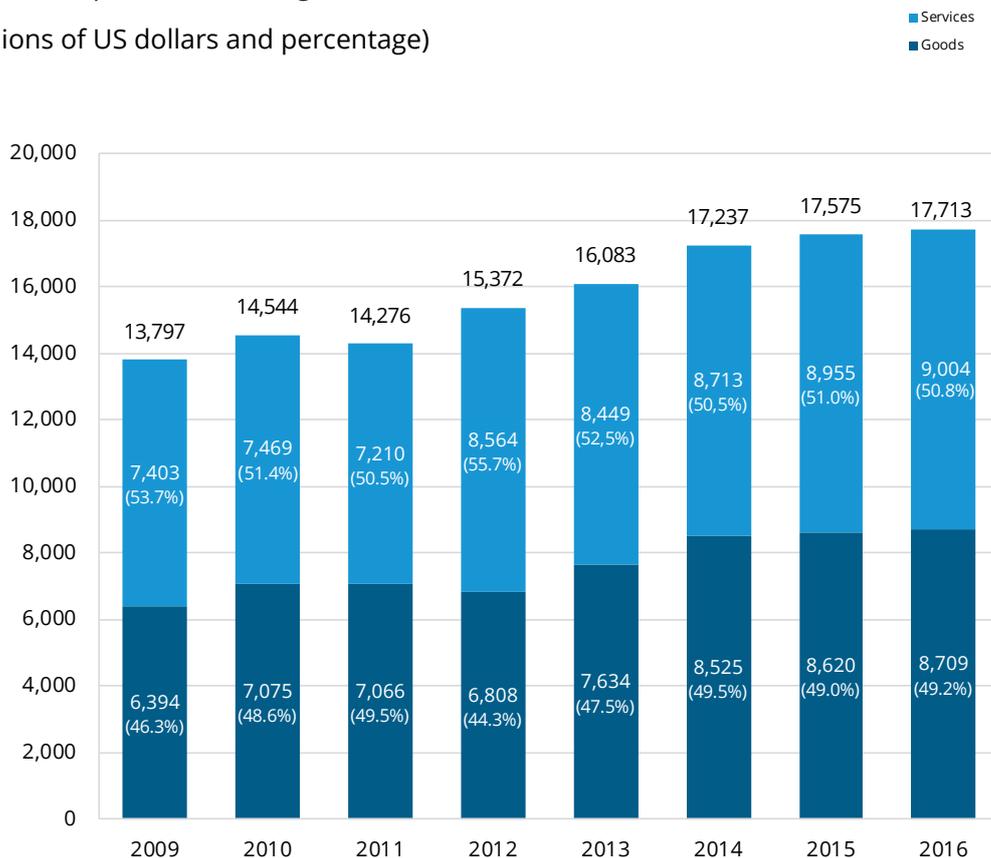

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Total procurement of goods and services for operational activities of the UN system

The overall procurement volume (goods and services combined) of UN organizations in 2016 increased to $17.7 billion, from $17.6 billion in 2015 – an increase of 0.8 per cent¹¹ (Figure 1).

(in millions of US dollars and percentage)

The increase in the overall procurement volume from 2015 to 2016 is attributable to a rise in volume from mainly four agencies¹², WFP, UNDP¹³, the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and UNOPS – together with the new addition to the UN system IOM, who reported

¹² WFP had an increase of $332.4 million, UNDP had an increase of $241.2 million if you exclude the NIM procurement. UNHCR had an increase of $198.2 million and UNOPS increase was $183.2 million.

¹³ UNDP had an increase of $241.2 million if you disregard the NIM procurement in both 2015 and 2016. The reported value in 2016 dropped by $1 billion if you compare to the reported value in 2015, which includes the NIM.

for the first time to the ASR this year. At the same time, some agencies experienced a drop in procurement compared to last year, with the International Labour Organization (ILO) and the World Health Organization (WHO) having the biggest impact on the overall procurement volume¹⁴.

The increase in procurement for WFP is entirely driven by an increase in food procurement related to level 3 (L3)¹⁵ emergencies. Particularly the increase in deliveries to Southern Africa as a result of the El Niño induced drought and the activation of the L3 emergency in Nigeria¹⁶. UNDP experienced a more general increase, with management and administrative services increasing slightly more than other categories. For UNHCR the increase is mainly attributable to the refugee crisis and an increase in purchases of tents, healthcare services, construction services and materials. For UNOPS the main drivers were an infrastructure project in Peru, security and safety services (peacekeeping and disarmament) and pharmaceuticals.

In 2016, the total procurement of goods increased by $88.9 million, an increase of 1.0 per cent¹⁷, while total procurement of services increased by $48.4 million, a raise of 0.5 per cent¹⁸. Just like in the previous two years, the share of goods of total procurement is 51 per cent and the share of services is 49 per cent, indicating a stabilization in the distribution between goods and services over the last years¹⁹.

Countries of supply to the UN in 2016

In 2016, the UN system procured goods and services from 221 different countries and territories, of which 122 had an annual procurement volume of more than $10 million. The following sections of the ASR summarize the UN system's procurement by region and development status of supplier country. In particular, the UN system's performance in increasing opportunities for suppliers in least developed countries, developing countries and countries with economies in transition is highlighted.

14 ILO's volume was exceptionally high last year due to HQ renovations on Geneva, and therefore it may correlate as a drop in volume this year with a total of $162.7 million. WHO experienced a drop of 14 per cent in their procurement volume, bringing down the UN total with $124.3 million in 2016.

15 Level 3 is the UN classification for the most severe, large-scale humanitarian crises. More information can be found here: <https://www.wfpusa.org/articles/understanding-l3-emergencies/>.

17 The adjusted increase (removing NIM from the 2015 data as well) was 4.6 per cent, $384.7 million.

18 The adjusted increase (removing NIM from the 2015 data as well) was 13.0 per cent, $1.033 billion.

Ten major countries of supply to the UN system in 2016

The 10 major countries supplying UN organizations included three developing countries (India, United Arab Emirates and Turkey) in 2016, with a joint procurement of $2.58 billion, accounting for 32.7 per cent of the top ten countries total procurement (Table 1). The three countries procurement represented 14.6 per cent of the UN total procurement, which is a decrease from last year when there were 4 developing and least developed countries in the top ten, accounting for 18.0 per cent of total UN procurement²⁰.

In 2016, Turkey, for the first time, joined the top ten supplier countries, with a procurement volume of $649.0 million, representing 3.7 per cent of total UN procurement. The UN system more than doubled its procurement from Turkey in 2016 compared to 2015, with an increase of 105 per cent, primarily driven by the procurement of WFP and UNHCR. Eighty-three per cent of the increase is due to higher food purchases from WFP, and thirteen per cent of the increase can be explained by procurement in management and administration services, and shelter equipment, by UNHCR. Turkey provides up to 76 per cent of UN food procurement. Other categories procured from Turkey are management and administrative services, clothing and footwear, and shelter equipment.

²⁰ Due to the NIM extraction this year.

The United Arab Emirates has featured as a top ten supplier country since 2013 and despite an increase in procurement volume of $63.7 million in 2016, it has dropped from the third in 2015 to the fourth largest country to supply the UN. The share of total procurement for United Arab Emirates increased from 4.6 per cent in 2015 to 4.9 per cent in 2016. The main categories procured from the United Arab Emirates are: food products, fuel, shelter equipment and construction services. Goods and services from the United Arab Emirates were primarily procured by UNPD, UNHCR, WFP, UNDP and the UN Children's Fund (UNICEF). Most of the increase in 2016 can be explained by an increase in purchases of shelter equipment by UNHCR.

India has been a top ten supplier country since 2000, and maintains its position as the second largest country to supply the UN in 2016, as has been the case since 2012. The procurement volume and share of total UN procurement, however, has dropped from $1.3 billion and 7.3 per cent in 2015 to $1.1 billion and 6.0 per cent of total UN procurement in 2016. The decrease in procurement can be attributed to a decrease in pharmaceuticals, which explains 97 per cent of the drop. India continues to be the main supplier in health to the UN system with $803.79 million within the health sector in 2016, with pharmaceuticals continuing to be the main procurement category for India. Procurement from India also included food, management services and medical equipment and supplies. Goods and services from India were procured primarily by UNICEF, the Pan American Health Organization (PAHO), UNDP and WFP.

It is also worth mentioning that Afghanistan for the first time since 2004 is not among the top ten countries supplying the UN system in 2016, which is explained almost entirely (98%) by the exclusion of the UNDP NIM engagements.

Procurement volume by region of supplier in 2016

Figure 2 shows the distribution of the supplier countries per region, which clearly shows that most of the UN procurement is supplied by suppliers from Asia and Europe. These two regions have also shown the largest growth in the past four years.

In Asia, the increase is mainly driven by procurement from Turkey, United Arab Emirates, Iraq, the Republic of Korea, and Jordan. The countries that contributed the most to the growth in 2016 was Turkey and Jordan, while half of the total increase for the Asia region in 2016 can be explained by an increase in procurement by the WFP from unspecified Asian countries.

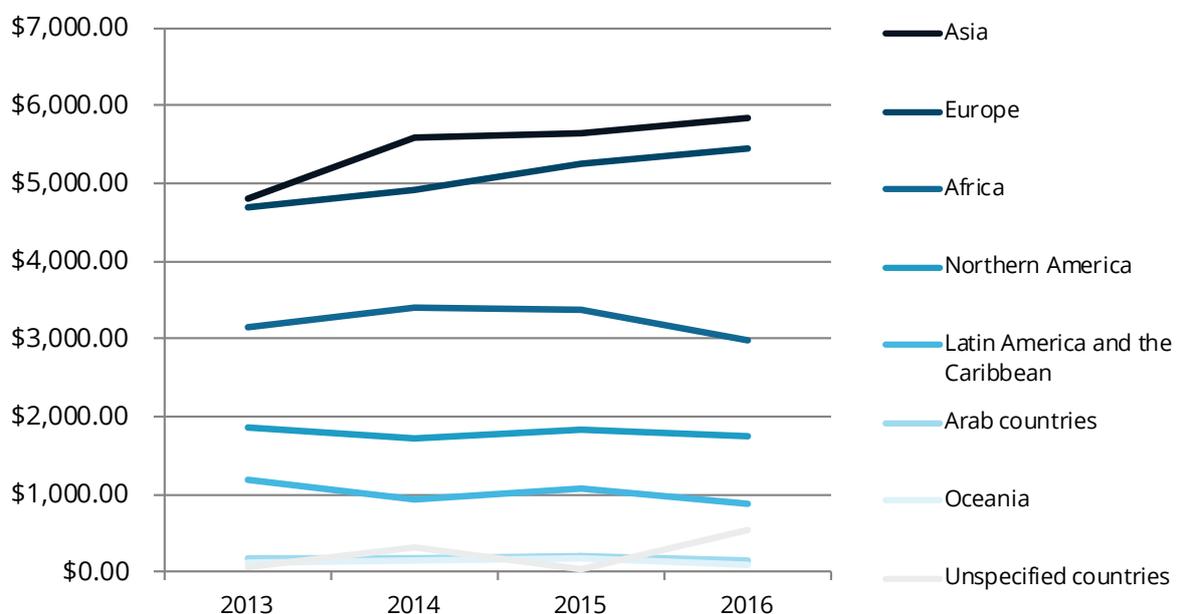

There has been a general increase of procurement from suppliers in Europe over the last 4 years with a slightly larger increase in countries in Northern Europe. The increase in 2016 is entirely driven by procurement by UNPD from suppliers in Denmark and the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland (UK). The increase in Denmark was mainly in the category of security and safety services and in the UK, it was in the categories of office machines and specialized trade construction.

The third largest region of supply is Africa, which had an increase in 2014 and 2015, but showed a decrease in its supply to the UN system in 2016²¹. Forty-four per cent of that decrease was due to a drop in procurement from Sudan, mainly from WFP, who stopped all their food and transportation procurement in the country. Another contributing factor is a decrease in fuels procurement from UNPD. A decrease in procurement from Ethiopia accounted for 27 per cent of the total decrease in the region, again due to a decrease from WFP and UNPD, both in the transportation category. The same agencies also had a decrease in procurement from Liberia and Kenya contributing to the overall drop in 2016.

Procurement from Northern American suppliers has been stable at just under $2 billion annually over the last 4 years and procurement from Latin American and the Caribbean suppliers has been fluctuating around the $1 billion mark annually during the same period. Arab country suppliers and Oceanian suppliers have been stable with a volume between $100 and $200 million.

²¹ 36.8 per cent of the decrease in 2016 is attributable to the changes in reporting methodology, where UNDP NIM data is no longer included. Even without that change in reporting, the decrease in the Africa region brings the 2016 procurement volume for Africa down below the initial volume in 2013.

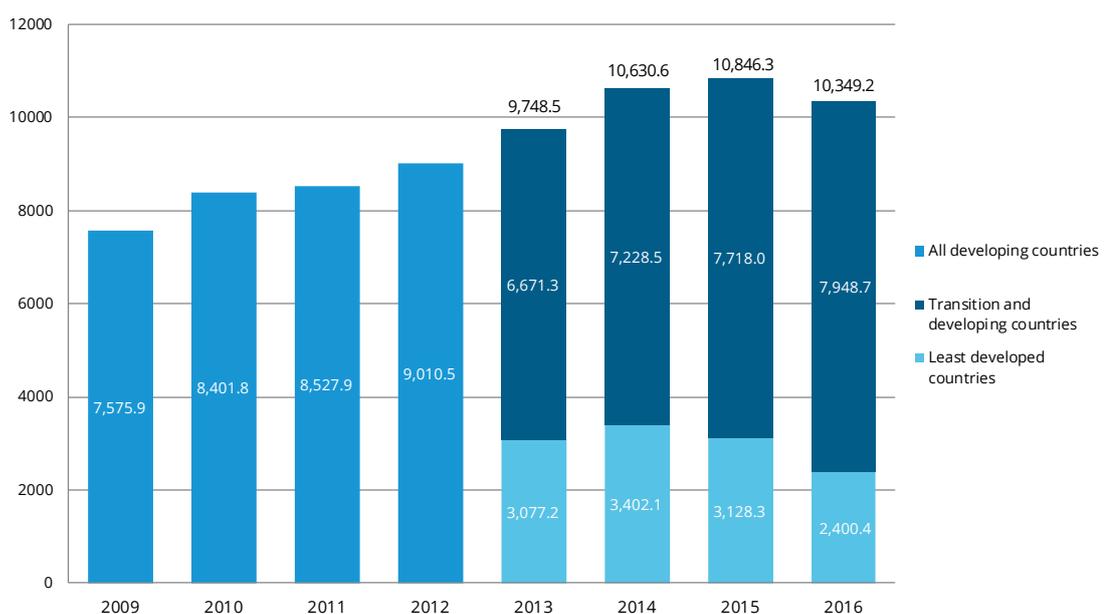

The procurement volume of unspecified countries fluctuates depending on submitting agencies. In 2016, IOM reported all their countries as unspecified, bringing the volume of unspecified countries up to $544 million.

Procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries

UN organizations have been working to increase procurement from developing countries and economies in transition since the late nineties, an effort that was intensified by General Assembly Resolution 57/279 (2003) on procurement reform, which encourages UN organizations to increase opportunities for suppliers from developing countries and economies in transition. The request was reiterated in 2007 by General Assembly Resolution 61/246 (2007), and UN organizations have placed more orders with these countries year-on-year in response.

The procurement volume from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries continued to increase in 2016. If we look at the adjusted totals, excluding UNDP NIM engagements data from the analysis, the actual increase from developing economies was $706.5 million. The drop that can be seen in Figure 3, to $10.3 billion, can be explained entirely by the exclusion of UNDP NIM engagements this year, as 92.2 per cent of the NIM data is procured from economies in transition, developing and least developed countries.

Figure 3. United Nations procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries, 2009-2016 (in millions of US dollars)

The cumulative increase in procurement volume from developing countries since 2009²² was 36.6 per cent. In comparison, the cumulative increase in procurement volume from developed countries was 12.3 per cent for the same period.

In 2016, procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries represented 58.5 per cent²³ of the total procurement volume, a decrease from 61.7 per cent in 2015²⁴. Procurement volume from least developed countries was $2.4 billion in 2016, which means that almost $14 of every $100 of procurement by UN organizations is from a least developed country. Procurement from unspecified countries increased significantly²⁵ in 2016 to $544.0 million due to the new agency IOM not being able to report on vendor countries this year.

Top twenty countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries supplying UN organizations

In total, procurement of goods and services from the top 20 countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries represented 36.0 per cent of overall UN procurement volume, a decrease of 2.9 percentage points from the previous year²⁶.

Some countries in the top 20 countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries have experienced a larger increase in procurement than others in 2016. Turkey experienced an increase of 105 per cent over its 2015 procurement volume, driven by an increase in food procurement by WFP, as previously explained.

Jordan, Peru and Iraq also had big increases (49.2, 48.2 and 33.4 per cent, respectively) over their 2015 volumes. The increase in Jordan is mainly due to an increase in procurement by UNICEF, WFP and UNHCR, for which the main categories were building and construction services, management and administration services, and food. Peru's increase in 2016 is entirely dependent on an increase in building and construction services by UNOPS, related to one infrastructure project. The increase in Iraq is primarily related to an increase in building and construction services procured by UNDP.

24 If we exclude the NIM from 2015 data, the share of developing countries was 59.2 per cent in 2015.

25 $35.8 million in 2015.

26 By excluding NIM from 2015 data, the share of the Top 20 was 37.8 per cent in 2015, and the decrease only 1.8 percentage points.

Some countries in the top 20 table have shown decreases in procurement in 2016. Due to changes in reporting methodology²⁷, Afghanistan is now ranked 15th, compared to 3rd in 2015. Procurement from Sudan showed a decrease of 38 per cent in 2016²⁸, where the majority of this is due to a decrease in procurement of transportation services and in food by WFP. Another contributing factor is a decrease in fuels procurement by UNPD. Procurement from Ethiopia also showed a large decrease in 2016, with a drop in procurement volume of 21.3 per cent since 2015²⁹, which was mainly due to less procurement of transportation services from WFP and UNPD.

For a detailed overview of procurement volume trends, types of goods and services procured, as well as the share of UN procurement for each of the countries listed in Table 2, please refer to the procurement profiles of these countries available from page 72 onwards.

Procurement by organizations of the UN system in 2015 and 2016

Figure 4. Total procurement by UN organizations, and the share of procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries, in 2015 and 2016 (in millions of US dollars and percentage)

The total procurement volume of the UN system has increased by $137.2 million in 2016³⁰, but 18³¹ of the 39 reporting organizations reported a decline in their procurement volume. At the same time, six organizations saw their procurement volume increase by more than 20 per cent over their 2015 volume³². WFP³³ showed an increase of more than $300 million from 2015 to 2016 and, together with 30 The adjusted increase for 2016 was $880.0 million, and is calculated as total UN increase for 2016 excluding new agencies (IOM, UNAKRT, UNICTY/MICT) and UNDP NIM data in 2015 as the inclusion of these volumes will distort the comparison between the years.

31 Figure 4 shows that 19 agencies had a decrease in procurement, as it includes UNDP, who in fact had an increase of $241.2 million over 2015, when the NIM data is excluded in 2015 as well.

32 For a detailed list of procurement of goods and services by UN organization, please refer to table 'Total procurement by UN organization' available on page 125.

33 The increase in procurement volume for WFP is entirely attributable to an increase in food procurement due to Level 3 Emergencies particularly in Southern Africa and Nigeria.

UNDP, UNHCR and UNOPS, they account for the majority of the adjusted increase in 2016³⁴. Figure 4 represents the procurement volume of individual UN organizations in 2015 and 2016. The figure also includes the percentage share of procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries for each organization³⁵.

Procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries

Figure 5 displays the procurement volume of the ten largest UN organizations³⁶, which as a group represented 89.4 per cent of the overall procurement volume of the UN system³⁷. The figure also shows the 2015 and 2016 share of agency procurement in percentage terms coming from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries³⁸. In total, procurement by the top ten organizations from these countries increased by $565.7 million, excluding UNDP, who had a decrease of $1.1 billion due to the removal of the NIM information³⁹. Organizations are listed in descending order by total procurement volume in 2016.

34 These four agencies accumulated an increase in procurement volume of $954.9 million from 2015 to 2016.

38 IOM was not able to report on vendor countries this year, and therefore does not show any share of procurement coming from these countries.

39 UNDP had an increase of $241.2 million (17 per cent) in 2016, if NIM procurement is removed from 2015.

Procurement by segment of goods and services⁴⁰

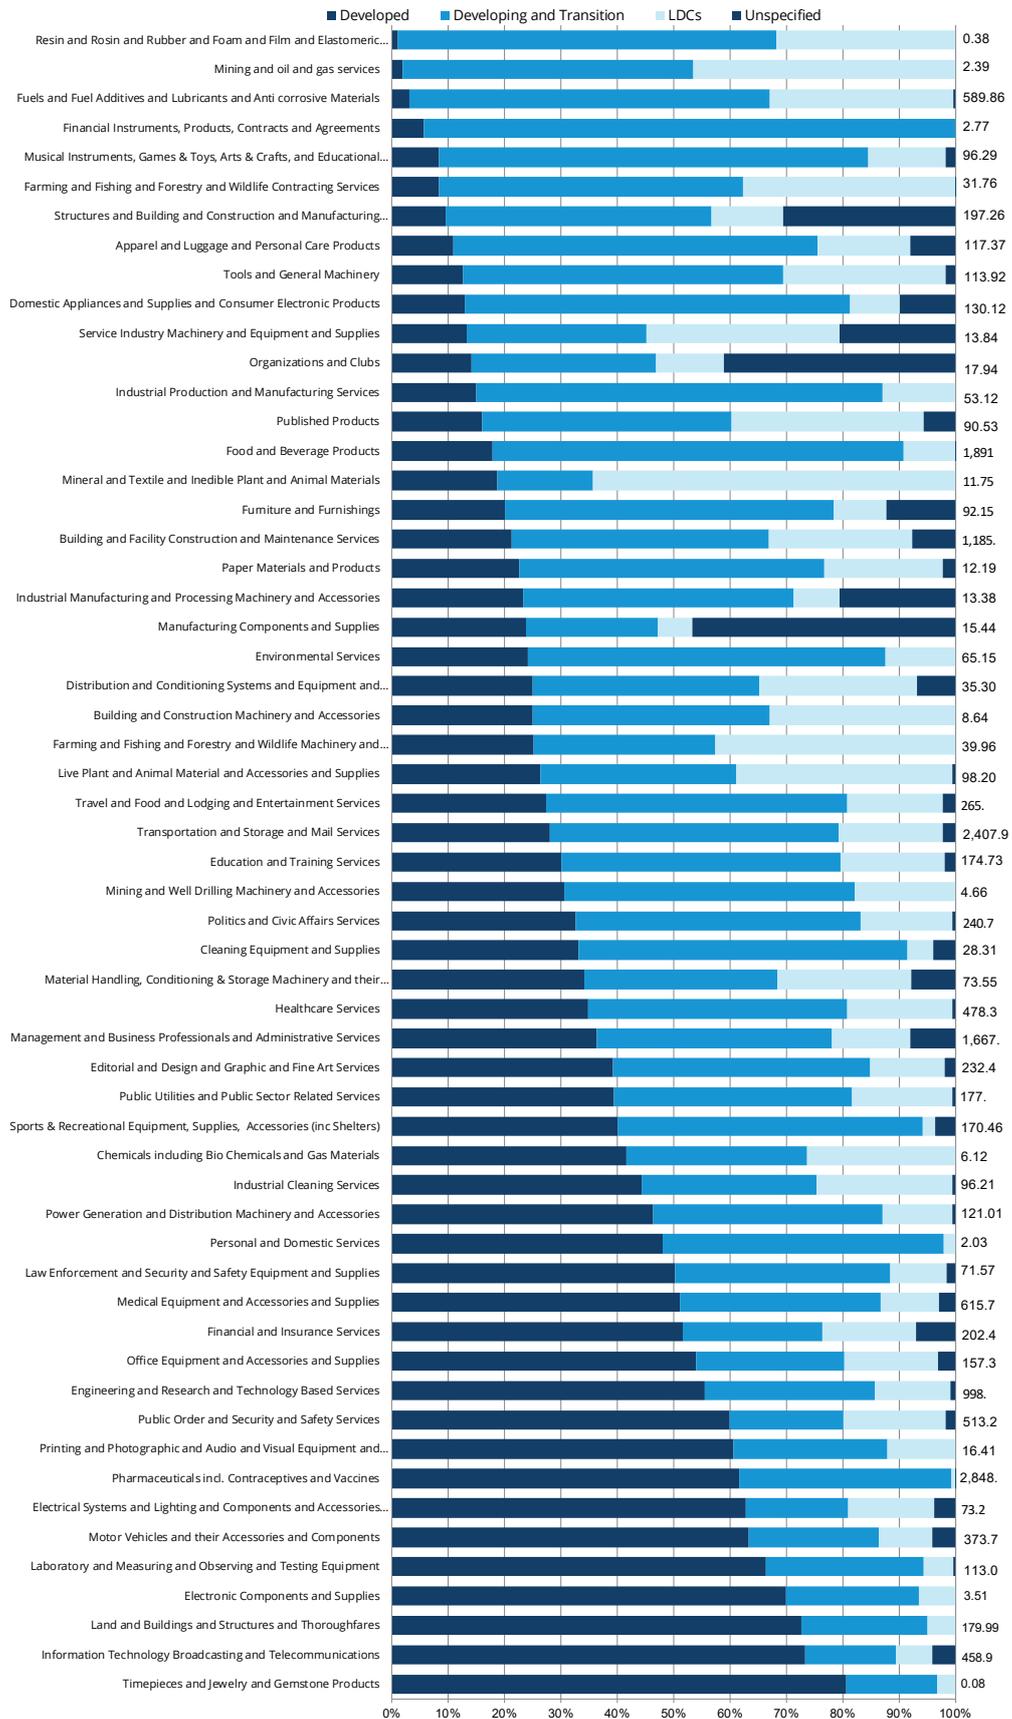

For the last 10 years, since 2006, the majority of the UN system's procurement has come from suppliers in countries with developing economies. The following category analysis provides an overview of the distribution of categories of goods and services, indicating which categories are predominantly procured from developed countries and which categories are predominantly procured from the group of developing economies.

In 2016, 30 different segments of goods and services were widely procured from countries with developing economies (Figure 6). For each of those 30 categories, at least 60 per cent of the procurement volume came from suppliers in countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries, which represented more than $5.8 billion of the 2016 procurement volume. Eleven categories had more than 80 per cent of the procurement volume originating from countries with economy in transition, developing countries and least developed countries.

In contrast, nine different categories of goods and services were largely procured from countries with developed economies, representing more than $2.6 billion of the 2016 procurement volume of the UN. For each of these nine categories, at least 60 per cent of the procurement volume was from developed countries. For more detailed analysis on categories procurement by the UN system, please see page 52.

Figure 6. Distribution of categories of goods and services between developed, transition, developing and LDCs, including 2016 total procurement volume. (in per cent)

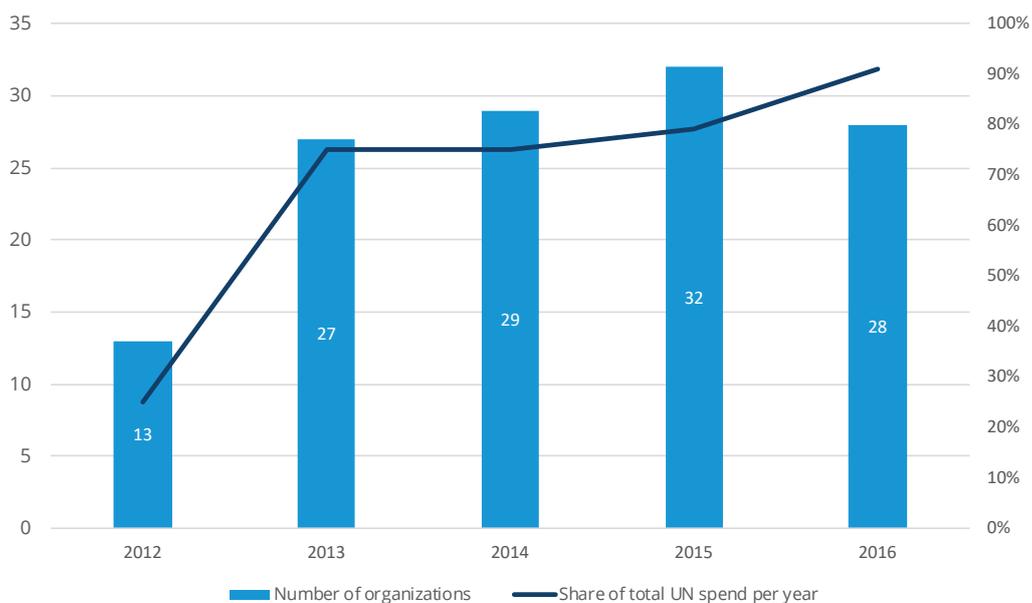

This year the report shows a larger percentage of procurement from suppliers where the country was not specified. This is due to IOM reporting for the first time this year, as they are currently unable to provide information on vendor country.

Sustainable procurement in the UN System

UN organizations, with their purchasing power of almost $18 billion per year, have the potential to send an important signal to the market in favour of sustainable development.

As in previous years, this year's Annual Statistic Report on UN procurement includes a section on sustainable procurement (SP)⁴¹, which provides insights on the extent to which sustainability considerations were integrated into the procurement processes of various UN organizations⁴².

Figure 7. Organizations reporting on sustainable procurement, 2012-2016 (In number of organizations & share of total UN spend per year)

This year's data showed that sustainability considerations continued to play an important role in procurement decisions conducted within the UN system. In 2016, the number of UN organizations reporting on SP issues decreased from 32 to 28 over the previous year. However,

41 Sustainable Procurement is defined as "practices that integrate requirements, specifications and criteria that are compatible and in favor of the protection of the environment, of social progress and in support of economic development, namely by seeking resource efficiency, improving the quality of products and services and ultimately optimizing costs." Source: UN High Level Committee on Management Procurement Network (HLCM, PN) and adopted in Vienna, February 2009.

42 The information for this section of the report was developed through the use of a voluntary survey that was conducted in parallel with the data collection process for the ASR.

the procurement spend of reporting organizations accounted for approximately 91 per cent of the total 2016 UN spend, as compared to only 79 per cent in 2015.

In 2016, UN organizations continued to focus on formalizing their high-level commitment to sustainable procurement. Sixty-four per cent of reporting organizations had either already adopted or were planning to adopt a sustainable procurement policy, while 54 per cent of them had either implemented or were planning to implement a sustainable procurement strategy.

In addition, the data for 2016 showed that all reporting organizations had implemented some sort of SP initiative. The use of whole-life costing in financial evaluations remained the most commonly used action. Sustainability criteria continued to be included to a large extent in tenders. Interestingly, environmental and economic considerations were applied to the same extent in tenders, while social considerations, despite a relative share increase of 7 per cent compared to 2015, continued to lag slightly behind.

With regard to internal capacity building initiatives, reporting organizations noted a slight decrease in their focus on training personnel, favouring instead other types of investments, such as hiring SP professionals or developing new tools. The data gathered also showed that the reporting organizations continued to collaborate with suppliers, in order to enhance sustainability in their supply chains. However, verification of supplier adherence to the UN Supplier Code of Conduct (UNSOC)⁴³ decreased over the previous year.

Procurement from UNGC participants increased slightly, both in relative and absolute terms, reaching 22 per cent of the total procurement volume of the reporting organizations. As in previous years, the change was not uniform across different regions. The most prominent increase was observed in Africa, where the procurement from UNGC suppliers more than tripled, reaching 16 per cent of the region's total procurement volume.

Finally, it should be noted that measurement and reporting continued to be an important challenge in assessing the application of sustainability criteria in tenders, especially for technical procurement categories.

Total procurement by country groupings

The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, adopted by the international community through General Assembly Resolution A/RES/70/1 (2015) in New York in September 2015, sets out an ambitious path through 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) to eradicate poverty, fight inequalities and tackle climate change, while ensuring that no one is left behind⁴⁴. Nearly half of the population of the 48 LDCs remained in extreme poverty as the UN took on this global challenge in 2016. The ASR has reported an increase in procurement to the UN system from both developing countries and countries with economies in transition since the 2005 report. Last year, the ASR begun to report on an additional country grouping – least developed countries – where shortfalls identified from SDG targets are the greatest.

Figure 8. United Nations procurement from developed countries, countries with economies in transition and developing countries, and LDCs, 2013-2016 (in millions of US dollars)

In 2016, procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and LDCs combined has increased by $706.5 million⁴⁵, while procurement from LDCs decreased by $176.9 million⁴⁶ over the same period. In Figure 9, when looking at the proportion of procurement for these groups combined as a proportion of the total procurement, the share of economies in transition, developing economies and LDCs has decreased from 61.7 per cent to 58.5 per cent, driven by the decrease for LDCs, from 17.8 per cent in 2015 to 13.6 per cent in 2016 (Figure 9)⁴⁷. It is important to note that the decrease of LDCs looks larger and the increase of transition and developing countries looks smaller due to the UNDP NIM extraction. The share of developing countries and economies in transition alone has been steadily increasing over the last three years, from 41.5 per cent in 2013 to 44.9 per cent in 2016.

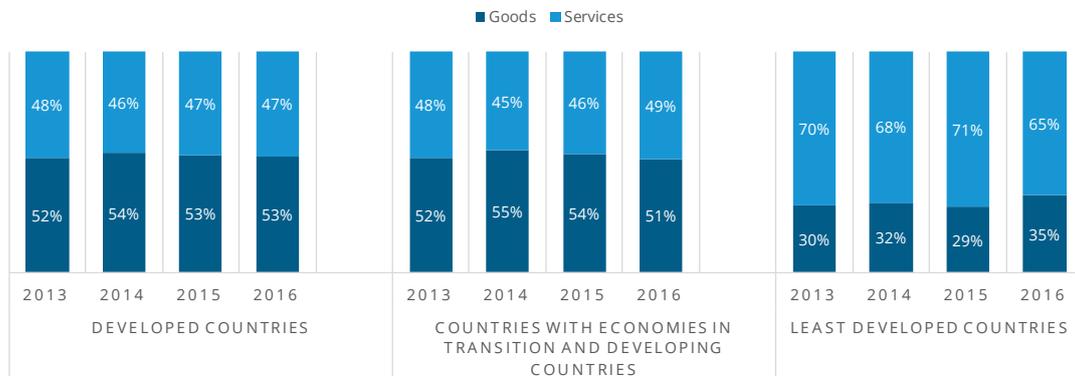

Figure 9. UN procurement from developed countries, countries with economies in transition and developing countries, and LDCs, 2013-2016 (in percentage)

The distribution of goods and services procurement differs between the different country groupings (Figure 10). For developed countries, developing countries and countries with economies in transition, the distribution between goods and services has remained consistent with a slight weight on goods at around 53 per cent over the last four years. For LDCs, the distribution between services and goods has also been consistent at 70/30 per cent as the UN procures significantly more services than goods from these countries. The drop in services in 2016 can be explained by the extraction of the UNDP NIM data, which is predominantly services.

⁴⁷ If we adjust for the NIM in the 2015 data as well, we can see that the share of procurement from all developing economies decreased by 0.7 per cent, and the share of LDCs decreased by 2.3 per cent.

48 Ranking is based on the individual organizations procurement volume in relation to the total UN procurement volume, 2016.

Together, this top ten represented 89.4 per cent of the overall procurement volume of the UN system in 2016 and 92.8 per cent of the UN system's procurement from LDCs. Procurement from LDCs decreased by $194.5 million from the top ten organizations compared to 2015 (excluding UNDP NIM).

Country group procurement by category

In 2016, UN organizations reported 29 per cent of their procurement volume on a UNSPSC® segment level, with the remaining 71 per cent reported on family level or lower, which provides further details into the categories of goods and services procured. This is an improvement in granularity compared to last year when 66 per cent of the procurement data was reported at a more detailed level and 34 per cent at UNSPSC® segment level. Overall, procurement was reported against all 57 UNSPSC® segments and 380 families, out of a possible 486 families⁴⁹.

Figure 12⁵⁰ looks at the UN system's procurement volume at a UNSPSC® segment level, articulating procurement into five high-level segment groups. The figure shows that procurement from developed countries is dominated by services and end-use products, with a combined share of 92 per cent. Procurement from countries with economies in transition and developing countries follow a similar distribution, where services and end-use products together made up 90 per cent of total volume, although these countries have a slightly larger share of raw materials (5 per cent versus 1 per cent) compared to developed countries. For LDCs, procurement of end-use products have a significantly smaller share of the total volume (18 per cent) compared to both the other country groups, whilst the share of procurement of raw material and services is higher compared to the other country groups.

49 UNSPSC® 'segment' is the highest level of the category hierarchy, with 'family' representing the next highest level. In all, UNSPSC® has four hierarchy levels.

50 If we compare the figure to last year, we can see that for all groups, the share of unspecified goods and services is significantly lower, due to the extraction of the UNDP NIM this year.

Figure 12. Procurement from developed countries, countries with economies in transition and developing countries and LDCs by UNSPSC® groups, in 2016. (in percentage)

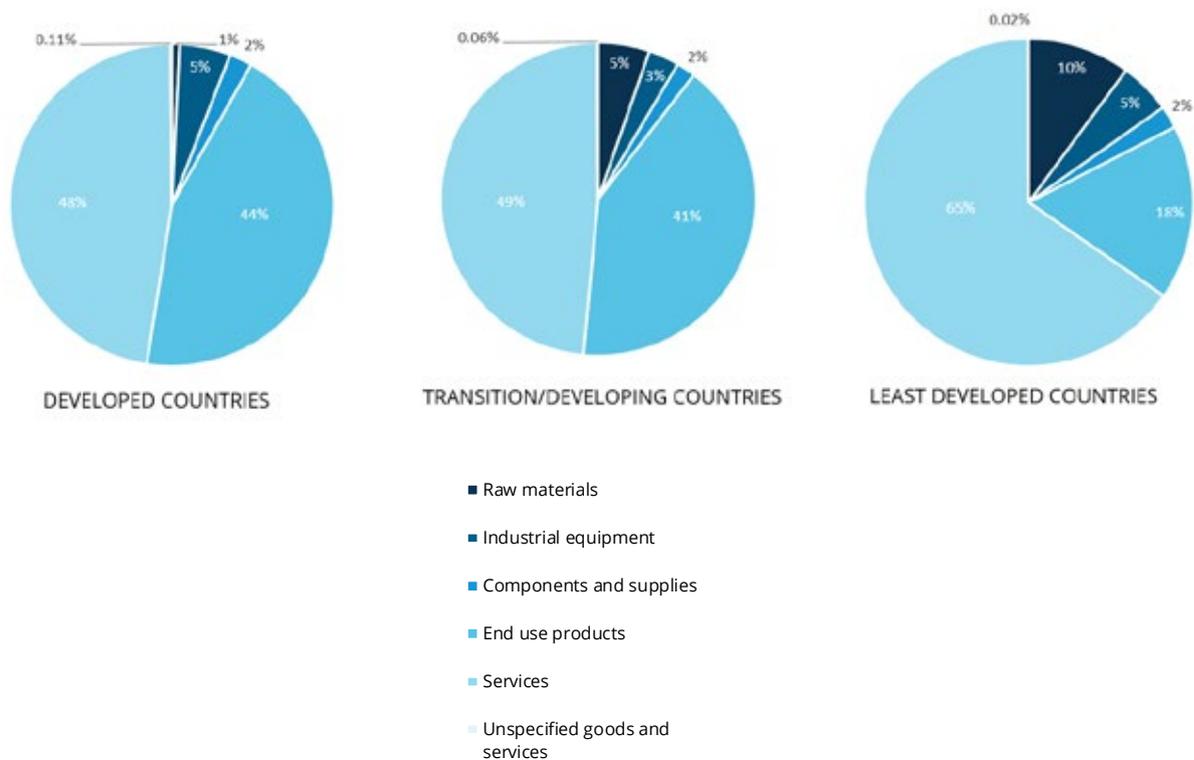

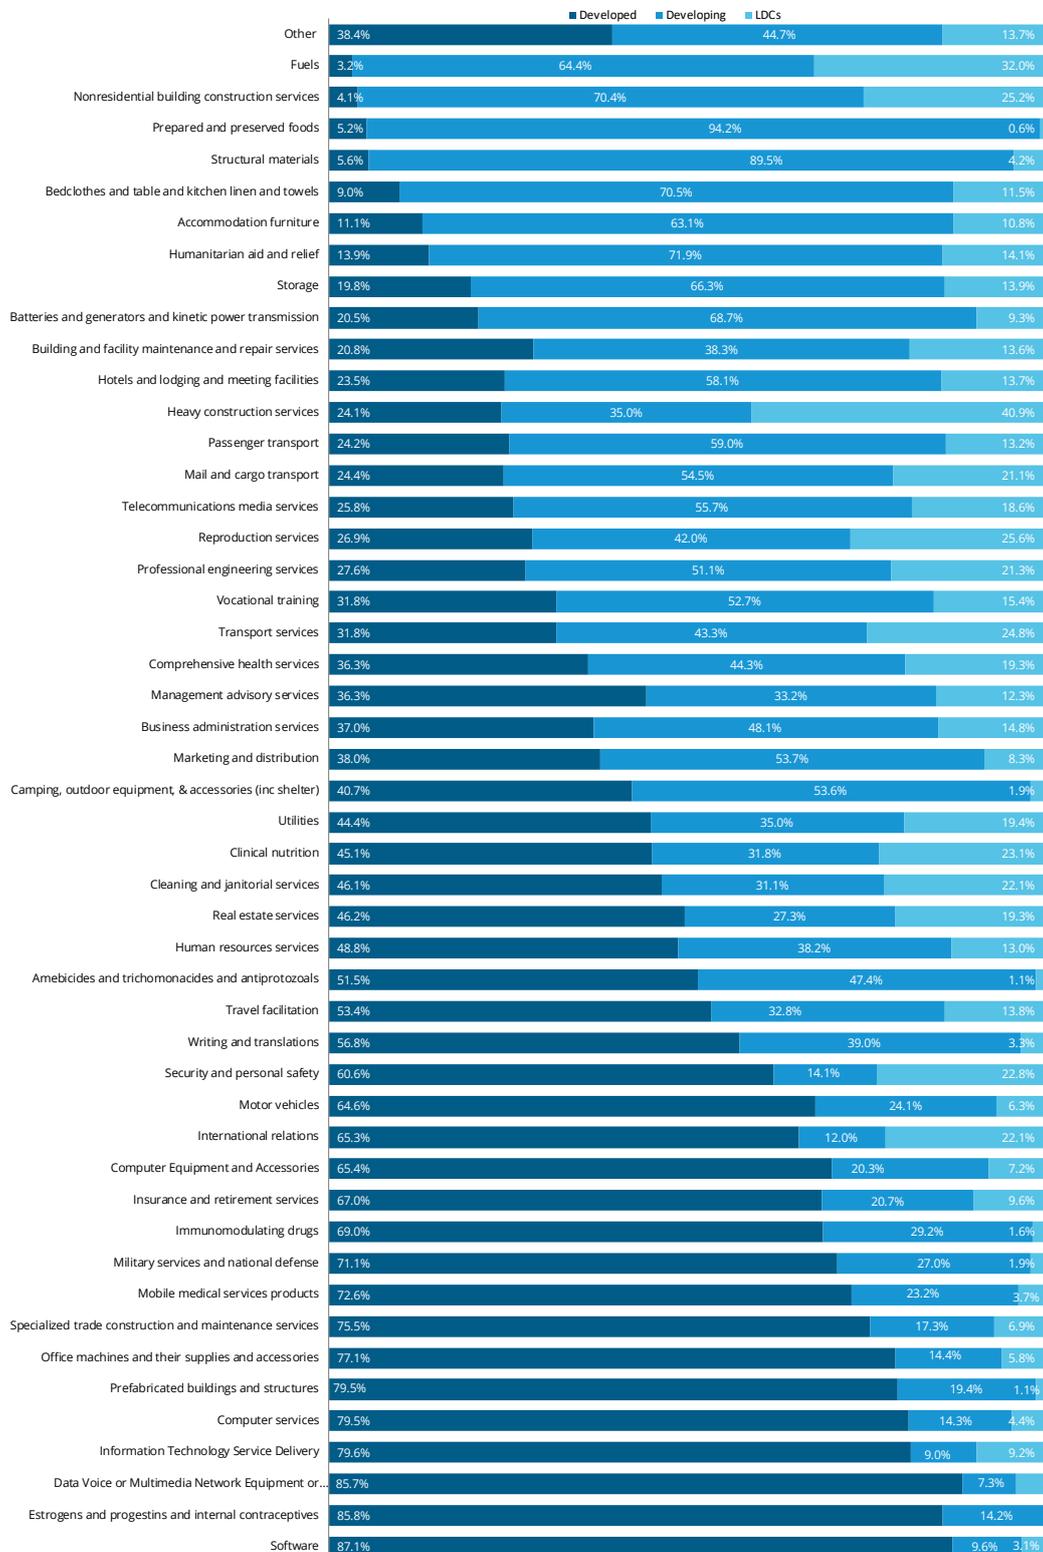

Figure 13 shows the distribution of 48 UNSPSC® categories at a family level, each accounting for $50 million or more in UN procurement volume in 2016. At this more detailed family level, a few categories stand out with a particularly high share of procurement from developed countries or countries with economies in transition and developing countries, and LDCs.

Of the 48 UNSPSC® categories displayed, 19 have more than 50 per cent of their total volume originating from developed countries. Seventeen of the UNSPSC® categories have more than 50 per cent of their procurement volume from both developing countries and countries with economies in transition, and a total of 29 UNSPSC® family categories have more than half of their total procurement volume coming from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and LDCs combined.

LDCs supplying UN organizations

The classification of LDCs was officially established by the UN General Assembly in 1971 as the UN began to focus on the most vulnerable and disadvantaged members of the UN system. Special measures were incorporated in favour of LDCs in the International Development Strategy for the UN in the 1970s. The First United Nations Conference on the LDCs was held in Paris in 1981, adopting a new programme of action for LDCs. Continuing on that decision, the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the Decade 2011-2020 was adopted by the Fourth UN Conference on the Least Developed Countries in Istanbul from 9 to 13 May 2011. The current list of LDCs includes 48 countries⁵², and they comprise more than 880 million people (approximately 12 per cent of world's population), but account for less than 2 per cent of world's GDP and about 1 per cent of the global trade in goods.

In total, the UN system's procurement of goods and services from LDCs represented 13.6 per cent of the overall UN procurement volume in 2016 (Table 3). The largest countries in terms of supply to the UN are Ethiopia, Afghanistan and South Sudan. For more information on what the UN procured from these countries, please see the country profile pages for the respective country⁵³.

The ten largest categories procured from LDCs represent 74 per cent of the total UN volume procured from these countries. A further analysis of the ten largest categories of goods and services procured from LDCs (Table 4), shows that the largest procurement volume for services is: cargo and passenger transportation (18 per cent); building and maintenance services (13 per cent); and management and admin services (10 per cent). Procurement of goods from LDCs is mainly focused on fuels (8 per cent), food (7 per cent) and medical equipment (3 per cent).

SUSTAINABLE PROCUREMENT
IN THE UN SYSTEM

Introduction

Sustainable Procurement practices integrate requirements, specifications and criteria that are compatible and in favour of the protection of the environment, of social progress and in support of economic development, namely by seeking resource efficiency, improving the quality of products and services, and ultimately optimizing costs.⁵⁴

UN organizations, with a purchasing power of almost $18 billion per year, have the potential to send a signal to the market in favour of sustainable development. In 2016, sustainability consideration continued to play an important role in procurement decisions conducted within the UN system. The following results were collected through a voluntary survey on Sustainable Procurement (SP), which was submitted by 28 UN organizations versus 32 in 2015. Of the 28 that submitted this year, 3 organizations reported for the first time, while 25 of the original 32 from 2015 continued to report⁵⁵.

The procurement spend of reporting organizations in 2016 accounted for approximately 91 per cent of the total 2016 UN spend of $17.7 billion, as compared to 79 per cent in 2015⁵⁶ (Figure 14). In addition, 67 per cent of reporting organizations indicated at least one new development since the last survey in their efforts to implement SP. Examples provided included the development of new SP reporting tools, key performance

⁵⁴ United Nations High-Level Committee on Management Procurement Network (HLCM-PN) (2009) – Sustainable Procurement Statement, Adopted by the HLCM Procurement Network meeting in Vienna, February 2009.

⁵⁶ The observed increase in the procurement spend of reporting organizations as a share of the total UN spend is mainly due to the fact that almost all UN organizations with large procurement spend responded to the SP survey this year.

indicators, as well as other actions, such as the inclusion of environmental considerations in the evaluation criteria of tenders, and the use of standard sustainability specifications for categories such as Information and communication technology (ICT), lighting and furniture.⁵⁷

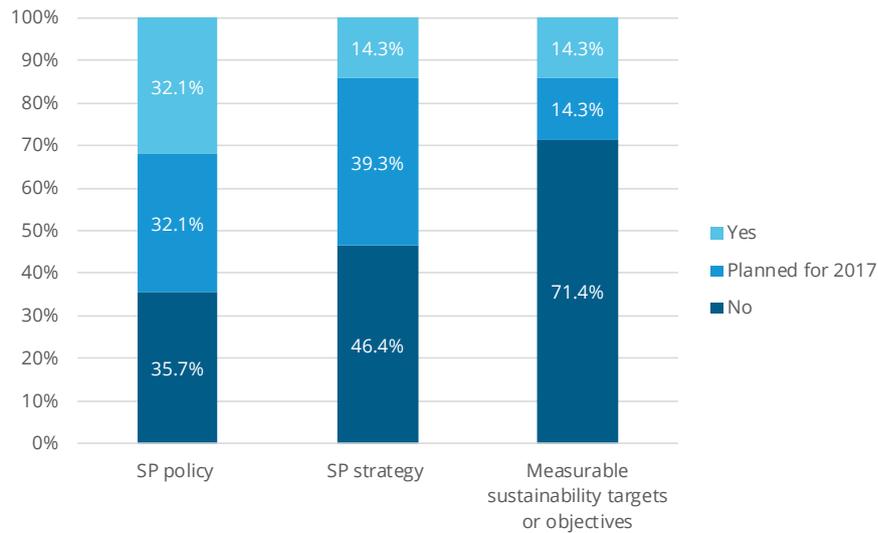

Policy and strategy

The inclusion of sustainability considerations into an organization's procurement policy and strategy can enable personnel, suppliers and other stakeholders to achieve a high level of commitment to more sustainable procurement practices, by providing the foundations and frameworks for action.

In 2016, 64 per cent of reporting organizations noted having already adopted or planning to adopt a formal procurement policy that includes sustainability considerations, while 54 per cent noted having already adopted or planning to adopt a procurement strategy that includes sustainability considerations (Figure 15). This information was further reinforced by the sustainable procurement outlook for 2017⁵⁸, which showed that reporting organizations have placed a high priority on the development of SP policies and strategies for the coming year.

Lastly, more than 28 per cent of reporting organizations also noted establishing or planning to establish measurable sustainability targets or objectives in their procurement processes.

Figure 15. SP policy, strategy and sustainability targets (2016)⁵⁹ (in percentage of reporting organizations)

⁵⁷ In line with efforts to develop a clear understanding of the extent to which sustainable procurement practices are being implemented within the UN system, this year, several questions included in the voluntary survey were modified, while others were removed and new ones were added. These adjustments were made following inputs received from several organizations at the end of the previous reporting cycle. Where possible, comparisons to previous years' data have been provided in the report.

⁵⁸ The sustainable procurement outlook for 2017 is presented on page 50 of this report.

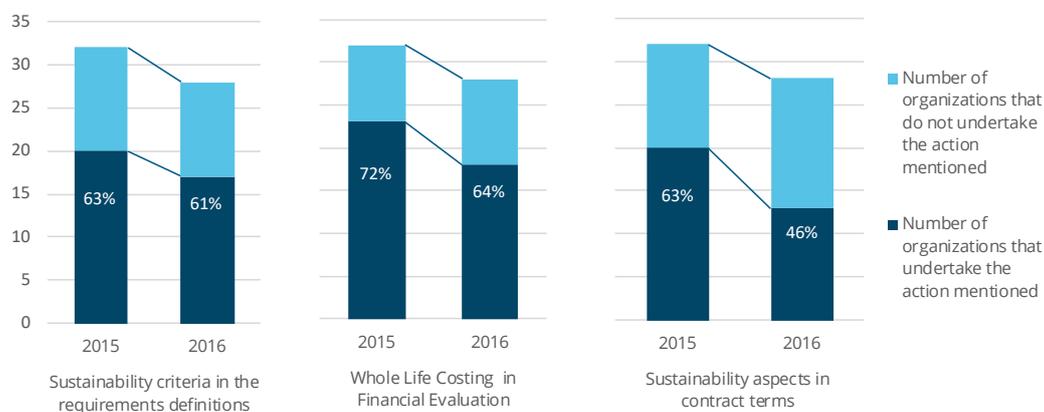

⁵⁹ The question used to generate this graph was modified significantly from the previous year to enhance the clarity and accuracy of the responses, and to further probe the extent to which sustainability considerations were applied in the processes of reporting agencies. As a result, comparative information for previous years was not available.

SP integration in the procurement process

Sustainability considerations can be integrated at different stages of the procurement process. Following the methodology used in the 2015 report, the framework for determining the efforts of reporting organizations to integrate sustainability in the procurement process included three key areas: embedding criteria into the requirements definitions of tenders⁶⁰, using whole life costing⁶¹ in the financial evaluation of tenders and including sustainability aspects in contract terms.

In 2016, the most common action taken by reporting organizations continued to be the use of whole life costing in the financial evaluation, followed by the integration of sustainability criteria in requirements definitions. Importantly, however, a portion of reporting organizations reduced the application of these measures in their tenders over the previous year, with the most notable reduction being found in the inclusion of sustainability aspects in contract terms, which noted a relative share decrease of 27 per cent (Figure 16)⁶².

This year, for the first time, the voluntary survey distinguished between two categories of procurement for the inclusion of sustainability criteria in requirements definitions: technical and administrative. The procurement for technical categories included procurement for project-related needs in field locations, while administrative categories included office needs such as furniture, ICT and paper⁶³. The data submitted noted that reporting organizations increasingly included sustainability considerations in the procurement process for administrative categories, with 53 per cent stating that sustainability considerations were included in more than 20 per cent of the requirements definitions of their tenders.

60 The general purpose of a requirements definition is to identify the precise needs of the requisitioner and to determine the best solution to meet those needs, in a way that will facilitate the procurement process.

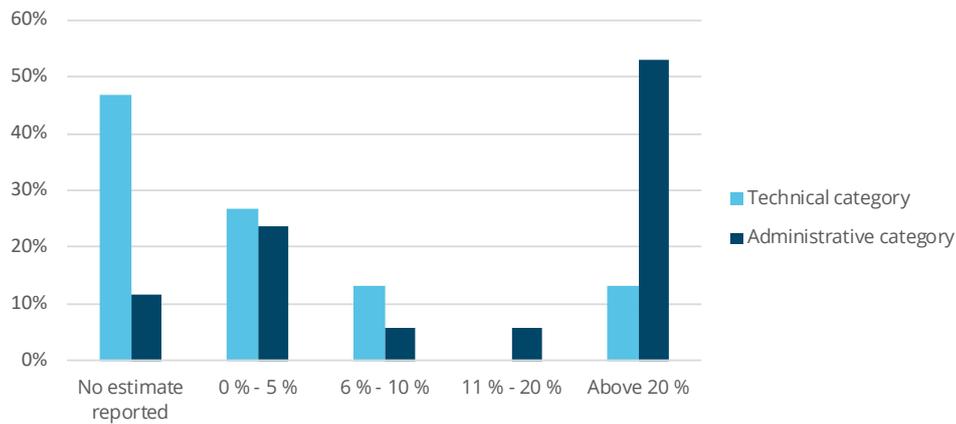

61 Whole-life costing as defined in the survey was “the sum of all recurring and one-time costs over the full lifespan of a good, service, structure, or system. It includes purchase price, installation cost, operating costs, maintenance and repair/upgrade costs, and remaining residual or salvage value at the end of ownership or its useful life.”

62 While additional data were not available at the time of writing this report to clearly identify a rationale for the decrease from 2015-2016, this could be explained by several things including, but not limited to, political uncertainty, enhancements made to internal measurement and reporting systems that improved the accuracy of their reporting, changes to personnel or other factors.

63 These two categories are general descriptions. They do not correspond to the taxonomy of the UNSPSC®.

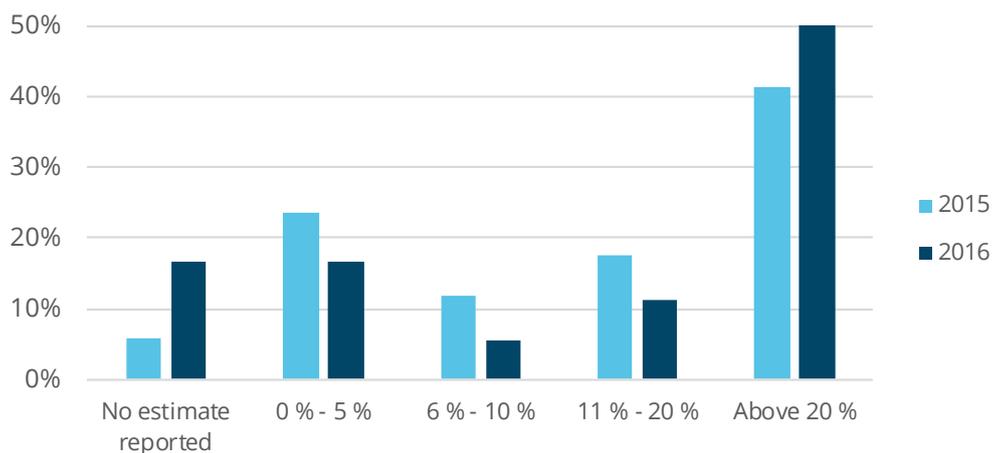

With regard to the inclusion of similar considerations for technical procurement categories, the data submitted noted that this was less pronounced (Figure 17). Importantly, data availability for these technical categories was also highlighted as an important challenge, with 47 per cent of reporting organizations not being able to provide estimates.

Regarding the adoption of whole life costing in the financial evaluation of tenders, the data gathered showed that reporting organizations continued to employ this tactic as part of their procurement processes (Figure 18). Half of the reporting organizations noted that this practice was applied in 20 per cent or more of their tenders; this accounted for a relative share increase of 9 per cent over 2015 data. Importantly, data availability was also reported as a challenge, with 17 per cent of the organizations not being able to estimate the extent to which whole life costing was included in the financial evaluations of their tenders.

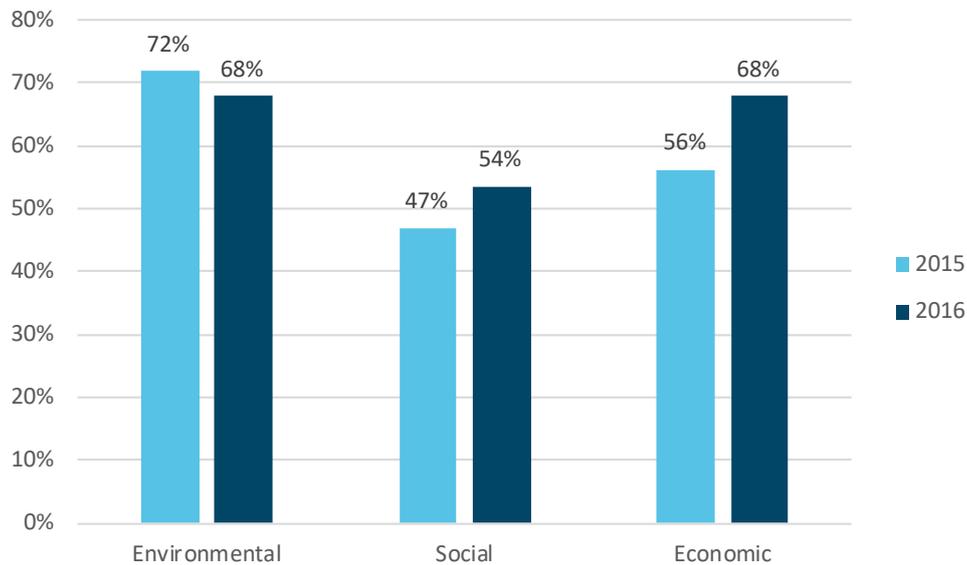

Figure 18. Integration of whole life costing in financial evaluations for tenders (2015-2016) (in percentage of reporting organizations and their respective tenders)

In 2016, reporting organizations noted several changes with regard to the types of sustainability considerations used in their tenders. Overall, environmental and economic considerations were applied to the same extent in the tenders of UN organizations, while social considerations, despite a relative share increase of 7 per cent compared to 2015, continued to lag slightly behind (Figure 19).

Internal capacity development

Internal capacity development can be an important enabler for organizations to successfully integrate sustainability considerations into their procurement processes. In 2016, reporting organizations noted that current or planned SP training interventions decreased from 69 per cent to 57 per cent (Figure 20)⁶⁵. Importantly, 11 of the reporting organizations also noted that in 2016, they made several investments in other activities to enhance their internal capacity on SP. Some notable examples provided included the recruitment of additional SP professionals and the development of new online tools to facilitate the incorporation of sustainability criteria in tenders.

⁶⁵ While additional data were not available at the time of writing this report to clearly identify a rationale for the decrease from 2015-2016, this could be explained by budget decreases or uncertainty, or due to the fact that existing personnel were previously trained.

Supply chain development

Suppliers can play an important role for the advancement of more sustainable practices. Through the UN Supplier Code of Conduct (UNSOC)⁶⁶, the UN has summarized its expectations of all suppliers in terms of labour and human rights, protection of the environment and ethical conduct. Ensuring that suppliers comply with the Code of Conduct and collaborating with them to enhance sustainability practices can help UN organizations address potential and current sustainability risks throughout the entire supply chain.

From the available data for 2016, verification of supplier adherence to the UNSOC noted a relative share decrease of 7 per cent over the previous year (Figure 21). Reporting organizations noted that active verification primarily included the maintenance of a UNGM roster and/or the use of a supplier questionnaire. In addition, 12 organizations noted that they actively collaborated with suppliers to enhance the sustainability of their supply chains, namely by undertaking common efforts towards reducing packaging and increasing transport efficiency.

UN procurement from Global Compact participants

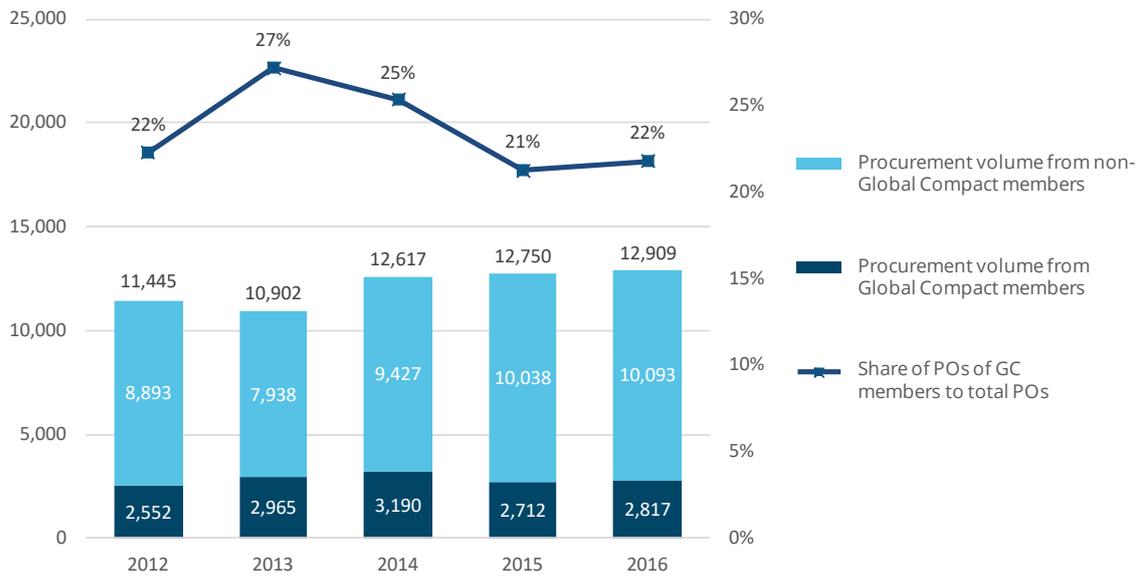

UNGC is the world's largest corporate sustainability initiative, calling on companies to align their strategies and operations with universal principles on human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption, and urging them to take actions that promote sustainable development. All UN vendors, regardless of their size or location, are actively encouraged to align with the UNGC's ten principles⁶⁷ and become UNGC participants⁶⁸. Participation in the UNGC is voluntary and depends upon the submission of an annual report outlining the commitment to continuous improvement of the participant in adherence to the UNGC's principles during the previous year and actions undertaken to advance sustainability.

For the tenth consecutive year, as part of the voluntary survey on sustainable procurement, the ASR included a separate section on UN suppliers' participation in the UNGC. Overall, the data for 2016 noted that the procurement from UNGC participants increased in both absolute and relative terms (Figure 22). More concretely, UN organizations procured goods, services and works for $2.8 billion from UNGC participants, or 22 per cent of the total procurement volume of the UN system for the last year.

67 For more information on the UN Global Compact principles, please see: <https://www.unglobalcompact.org/what-is-gc/mission/principles>

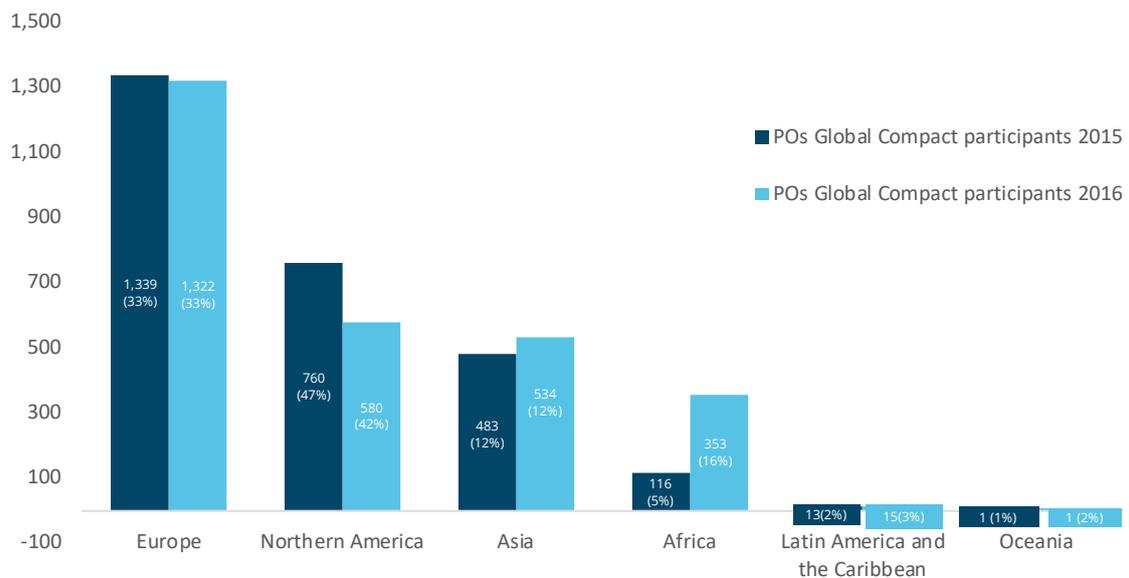

68 UNGC participants are required to make a public commitment to sustainability and to report annually on their progress, through the development of a Communication on Progress Report, which is submitted directly to the UNGC.

Figure 22. Share of UN procurement from Global Compact participants (2012-2016)⁶⁹ (in millions of US dollars and percentage of total UN procurement, for orders > $30,000)

With regard to regional differences, the observed increase in the procurement from UNGC participants, however, was not equally distributed across all regions (Figure 23). For example, while the share of procurement from UNGC participants decreased in Northern America, it more than tripled in Africa, reaching 16 per cent of the procurement volume for this region in 2016.

⁶⁹ Purchase orders from suppliers whose names were removed (for example due to security concerns), or whose country of origin was not specified, were excluded from this analysis.

Europe and North America continued to be major regions of origin for UNGC participant-suppliers (68 per cent of the total UNGC procurement volume for the last year), while Asia and Africa is steadily increasing (Figure 24).

Sustainable procurement outlook for 2017

SP can play an important role in the efforts of the UN system to contribute to sustainable development, and it continues to evolve within the UN system. In total, 36 per cent of the 2016 reporting organizations noted tangible ways in which the implementation of SP practices in their work will support the advancement of the SDGs. Examples provided included the mainstreaming of SDG objectives into procurement activities and the empowerment of small- and medium-sized enterprises, as well as women-owned businesses through procurement.

In addition, the planned SP activities for 2017 showed that priority will continue to be given to high-level commitment, through the development of new procurement policies and strategies incorporating sustainability considerations (Figure 25).

PROCUREMENT BY SECTORS AND CATEGORIES OF GOODS AND SERVICES

Total procurement by sectors of goods and services

Procurement of goods and services by the UN system fall into a wide variety of categories, which can be grouped into sectors that relate to different areas of procurement. The sectors of categories are in line with the current focus areas within the UN and its procurement operations, and have not changed since last year. Each sector includes goods and services categories from different UNSPSC® segments and families. Figure 26 shows the distribution of UN system procurement across the largest sectors of goods and services categories.

In 2016, the health sector continued to be the largest sector in terms of procurement volume (which includes procurement of pharmaceuticals, healthcare services, and medical and laboratory equipment) with a share of 22.4 per cent of overall procurement last year, which is a decrease of 0.6 percentage points over the 2015 share.

Table 5. Procurement by sectors, 2016 (in millions of US dollars and percentage)

The second largest sector in 2016 was the consultancy, administration and operations sector, with 17.6 percentage points, an increase of 2.6 per cent over last year's result. The sector includes both goods and services either directly procured in relation to ongoing programmes and projects, or for administrative services or operations support to UN activities. The transport sector (transport services and motor vehicles) went from the second-largest sector of procurement in 2015 to the third largest sector for the UN system in 2016, despite an increase from 16.7 to 17.2 per cent of total procurement.

Food and farming (food, beverage, live plants and animals, farming accessories and services) increased from 10.1 per cent in 2015 to 11.6 per cent in 2016. This surpassed the construction and engineering sector (construction supplies and services, engineering services, structures), the fifth largest sector, which had a slightly smaller increase from 10.6 per cent in 2015 to 11.3 per cent in 2016.

The sixth sector in 2016 was peace and security, with an increase of 2 percentage points to 3.3 per cent in 2016. This sector and the remaining five sectors (humanitarian aid, climate action, energy, education, and clean water and sanitation) were added to the report last year, in an attempt to align with procurement focus areas and to reflect the new SDGs. The remaining five sectors together represent approximately 3 per cent of total UN procurement in 2016.

Other goods and services represented 13.5 per cent of the total in 2016, compared to 20.5 per cent in 2015; this decrease is attributable to the extraction of NIM data in this year's report. Table 6 shows a breakdown of the different categories included in the other goods and services sector, the main category being fuel with 24 per cent of the sector total.

Detailed procurement of the top five sectors by UNSPSC® family

This section of the report provides a more detailed analysis on categories procured, with focus on the five largest sectors. Combined, the five largest sectors of procurement account for 81 per cent (76 per cent in 2015) of total procurement in the UN system for 2016. In continuation, there will be an analysis of main categories, major supplier countries and the largest procuring organizations within each of the sectors.

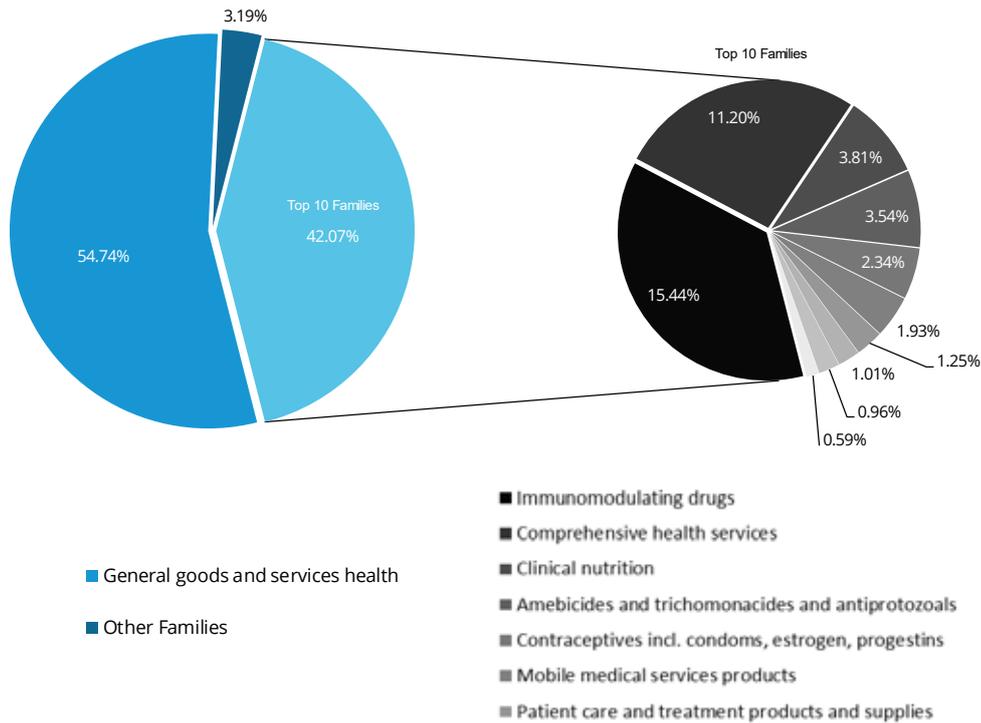

The following analysis is based on goods and services categorization provided on UNSPSC® family level⁷². For 2016, more than 71 per cent of all reported UN procurement is provided on a more detailed level of the UNSPSC® classification, an improvement from last year when 66 per cent of the data was provided at this level. Twenty-nine per cent of reported data still remains on a more general level and will be displayed as 'general goods and services' within each sector.

⁷² The UNSPSC® category classification system categorizes goods and services following a four-level hierarchy. 'Family' designates the second highest level of categorization, which classifies goods and services into more than 500 categories.

Health sector

The share of the top ten UNSPSC® family categories within the health sector represented 42 per cent of overall health procurement in the UN system in 2016 (Figure 27). Fifty-five per cent of the procurement volume for health procurement was not reported on a UNSPSC® family level, of which 93 per cent was UNICEF's health procurement, which consists predominantly of vaccines⁷³.

The top ten family categories procured within the health sector are listed in order of procurement volume in Table 7. The table also provides information on the largest procuring organization, their procurement volume and the share of that organization within that individual category.

The table highlights that PAHO is procuring almost all immunomodulating drugs that the UN procures, which is the largest single category under the health sector. PAHO is also responsible for nearly all antiviral drugs procurement within the UN system. Comprehensive health services, the second largest category, are predominantly procured by WHO. Clinical nutrition is almost entirely procured by UNICEF, and contraceptives are nearly exclusively procured by UNFPA. The remaining top ten categories show a larger spread of the volume amongst UN organizations, but most of the health categories show a UN organization having a dominating volume within the specific category.

⁷³ Details provided by UNICEF.

Five UN organizations are responsible for 93 per cent of all UN health procurement in 2016 (Table 8). The main procuring organization in this sector is UNICEF, with 55 per cent of the total volume. PAHO and WHO procure 16 and 12 per cent of all health goods and services respectively in 2016. UNDP procured 6 per cent of total health procurement and UNOPS took UNFPA's place in the largest 5 organizations in health, procuring 4 per cent of total in 2016.

India is the main country of supply for the health sector, with $804 million in 2016, which represented 20 per cent of total health procurement for the UN system (a drop from 25 per cent in 2015). The second largest supplier country was Belgium, who increased from 14 per cent in 2015 to 19 per cent of total health procurement in 2016, and thus surpassed the United States of America, the third-largest supplier country in 2016 with 13 per cent. Together the top three countries supply more than 50 per cent of all health procurement. All top five health supplier countries have pharmaceuticals as their largest category within health.

Transport

Together the top ten UNSPSC® family categories within the transport sector represent 89.4 per cent of total transport procurement of the UN system. Only 9 per cent of this category is reported as general goods and services, and not provided at UNSPSC® family level. The two main categories are mail and cargo transport; and passenger transport, which represent 59 per cent of all transport procurement.

Table 10 provides information on the top ten categories procured within the transport sector, together with largest procuring organization, including the share the organization has within that category. The largest category within transport is mail and cargo transportation, with WFP responsible for 80 per cent of all procurement within that category. WFP is also the top organization with regard to three other transport-related categories in the top ten family categories. The second-largest category within this sector is passenger transportation, with UNPD responsible for 71 per cent of total 2016 volume within that category. The third-largest transport category is motor vehicles, with UNOPS responsible for 29 per cent of 2016 volume.

The main categories are business administration services (18 per cent), real estate services (11 per cent) and computer services (11 per cent) (Figure 29). The remaining categories at the family level represent 19 per cent of this sector’s procurement and 13 per cent of all sector procurement is reported at the segment level only.

The top five UN organizations procuring consultancy, administration and operations are responsible for 65 per cent of all UN procurement within this sector in 2016 (Table 14). The largest procuring organization in this sector is UNDP, responsible for $613.5 million, representing 20 per cent of total sector procurement. UNPD was responsible for 16 per cent, UNHCR for 13 per cent, and UNICEF for 10 per cent of the total in this sector. IOM replaced WFP as fifth largest organization in this sector having a share of 6 per cent.

Construction and Engineering

Together the top ten family categories represent 75 per cent of total procurement in this sector (Figure 30). Nineteen per cent in this sector is not reported at a UNSPSC® family level. Professional engineering services account for 17 per cent of total procurement, and building and facility maintenance and repair services account for 16 per cent. Non-residential building construction services represent 16 per cent and the remaining categories each have a share of 7 per cent or less.

Figure 30. Construction and engineering sector procurement within the UN system, total and top ten categories as share of total by UNSPSC® family, 2016. (in percentage)

The main category within this sector is professional engineering services, for which UNDP is the largest procuring organization with 56 per cent of the total volume ($345.9 million) (Table 16). For the building and facility maintenance and repair services, the main procuring agency is IOM, with 27 per cent of the total. The third largest category, nonresidential building construction services, the main procuring organization is UNOPS with 55 per cent of the total in this category. UNOPS is also the largest procuring agency for heavy construction services and permanent buildings and structures, while UNDP is the largest organization in the specialized trade construction and prefabricated buildings categories. UNHCR procures more than 90 per cent of both structural materials and lamps and lightbulbs and lamp components.

Food and Farming

The top ten family categories in the food and farming sector represent 31 per cent of total procurement (Figure 31), while 66 per cent of procurement in this sector was not at a UNSPSC® family level. The category 'prepared and preserved foods' is by far the largest with 22 per cent of the total of the top ten family-level categories. The distribution between the remaining categories is dispersed, with categories covering 2 per cent or less of total procurement within this sector.

Figure 31. Food and farming procurement within the UN system, total and top ten categories as share of total by UNSPSC® family, 2016. (in percentage)

The food and farming sector has a strong relation to some organizations' mandates, similar to the health sector. Table 19 shows that the majority of the top ten categories within the food sector have one UN organization procuring between 95 and 100 per cent of that category. UNPD procures 95 per cent of all prepared and preserved foods, while FAO procures most of the unprocessed foods and agricultural categories. The United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) procures almost a 100 per cent of all cereals, dairy products, and edible oils and fats, while PAHO procures 87 per cent of all pest-control products. Only two categories within the top ten are not dominated by one organization: agricultural and forestry machinery and equipment, where UNDP procures 58 per cent, and water and resources development, where FAO procures 50 per cent.

Almost all procurement (98 per cent) of food and farming categories is covered by five UN organizations (Table 20). The main procuring organization of food is WFP, procuring 66 per cent of all goods and services in this sector. WFP reports all their food procurement as 'general food procurement', resulting in all of the 'general goods and services food and farming' in Figure 31 above, being food from WFP.

For procurement volume reported on a UNSPSC® family level, UNPD is the largest organization with 21 per cent of all food procurement in 2016; almost all of this volume is prepared and preserved foods. FAO procures 5 per cent of all food and farming related goods and services, procuring goods and services that are predominantly related to agriculture. UNRWA is responsible for 4 per cent of total food and farming procurement and UNDP for 2 per cent.

COLLABORATIVE PROCUREMENT WITHIN THE UNITED NATIONS SYSTEM

Introduction to collaborative procurement

The Annual Statistical Report on UN Procurement reports for the first time on collaborative procurement within the UN system in the 2016 report. This section is developed in response to the Quadrennial Comprehensive Policy Review (QCPR) resolution (A/RES/71/243) adopted by the General Assembly on the 21 December 2016. The resolution calls upon UN organizations to further their synergies and inter-agency efforts, and requests that UN system entities explore further opportunities for collaborative procurement at the global, regional and country levels. The General Assembly also requests that the organizations record details of the efficiencies achieved through collaborative procurement and report them in a consolidated format to the Annual Statistical Report on United Nations Procurement. The year 2016 will be used as a baseline for reporting on collaborative procurement, aiming to improve the analysis year-on-year based on the availability of data in this area.

Reported collaborative procurement

In 2016, 18 organizations reported collaborative procurement, while 21 organizations were unable to provide information (Figure 32). Collaborative procurement encompasses the following set of activities ⁷⁴: (a) Using existing long-term agreements (LTAs) or contracts of other UN organizations; (b) Establishing and using joint LTAs through a 'lead agency' approach; (c) using the procurement services of other UN organizations; (d) Other formal collaborations with UN partners through: (i) joint procurement unit, or (ii) sharing specifications or developing common specifications.

Figure 32. Reported Collaborative Procurement by number of UN organizations 2016 (in number of organizations)

The total volume of collaborative procurement reported in 2016 was 2.7 billion, representing 15.0 per cent of the total UN procurement volume. The organization that reported the highest volume of collaborative procurement was UNICEF ⁷⁵, who was responsible for 83.4 per cent of the reported collaborative volume for the UN in 2016 (Table 22). The agency with the second largest reported volume of collaborative procurement was UNOPS with 8.2 per cent of total reported volume, and the third largest collaborative procurement volume was reported by WHO, with 1.9 per cent of the total.

⁷⁴ As defined by the High-Level Committee on Management Procurement Network in the following guidelines: https://www.ungm.org/Areas/Public/Downloads/15_06%20HarmonizingUNProcurement_GUIDELINES_final.pdf.

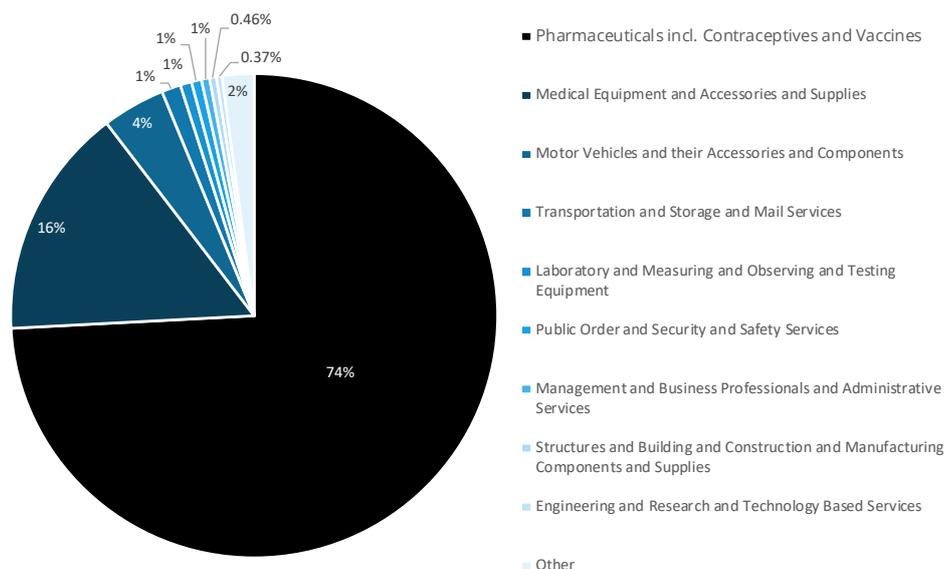

⁷⁵ UNICEF only reported collaborative activities for their goods procurement in 2016. As their procurement of services is more decentralized, any collaborative activities are difficult to identify in their ERP system.

The reported collaborative procurement is distributed over 46 UNSPSC® segments, with the top ten categories representing 97.9 per cent of the total reported collaborative volume. The largest category reported as collaborative is pharmaceuticals, where almost all of it consist of UNICEF's vaccines procurement, accounting for 98 per cent of that volume. The second category is medical equipment and supplies, again predominantly procured by UNICEF (93.9 per cent), including clinical nutrition with 39 per cent of that segment. The third largest category reported as collaborative is motor vehicles and their accessories, and the main organization reporting collaborative spend in this category is UNOPS with 66.2 per cent of the total.

Opportunities for collaboration

Table 23 shows the categories of goods and services, by UNSPSC® family level, with the highest number of procuring UN organizations. The table also indicate the total UN spend, the reported collaborative procurement volume, and the number of available LTAs for each of the categories. Twenty-two categories are procured by thirty or more UN organizations, with the top categories being computer services and insurance and retirement services, both procured by thirty-eight out of thirty-nine participating organizations. For computer services, there are 63 LTAs available on the United Nations Global Marketplace (UNGM), while there is only one LTA available on UNGM for insurance and retirement services. The table also shows four categories where no LTAs are currently shared on UNGM: real estate services, utilities, specialized trade construction services, and cleaning and janitorial services.

UN to UN procurement

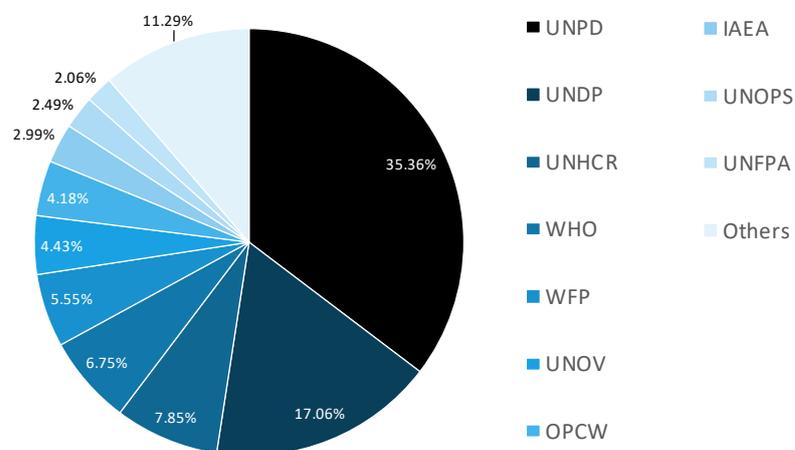

This section looks at all procurement where a UN organization has been identified as the supplying organization. Since this section looks at the full dataset reported to the ASR, it will give a more complete picture of the collaborations done as procurement from another UN organization. Thirty-five out of the thirty-nine organizations submitting procurement data to the ASR have taken part in UN-to-UN procurement, as can be seen in Table 24. The table also shows the top eight organizations identified as supplying procurement to other UN organizations, and how much each of the procuring organizations have procured from each of them.

Procurement from UN organization to UN organization totals $733.0 million (Table 24) and represents 4.1 per cent of the total 2016 UN procurement volume. The organization with the highest volume procured from another UN organization is UNPD, with a volume of $259.2 million (Table 24) and 35.4 per cent (Figure 34) of total UN-to-UN procurement. The second largest organization in procurement from UN suppliers is UNDP with 17.1 per cent, followed by UNHCR with 7.9 per cent of total. Together the top ten procuring organizations are responsible for 88.7 per cent of all UN-to-UN procurement.

The largest organization supplying other UN organizations is UNOPS, with a volume of $286.6 million (Table 24) and 38.85 per cent (Figure 35) of total UN supply. UNDP is the second largest UN organization with 17.9 per cent, followed by UNICEF with 15.9 per cent. Together, the top ten UN organizations are responsible for 88.2 per cent of total UN-to-UN supplies.

UN-to-UN collaboration can also be measured by the number of UN organizations engaging in such transactions. Table 25 shows the top ten organizations collaborating with the largest number of other UN entities, both as a supplier and procurer. UNDP is at the top, with 31 organizations procuring from them, as well as supplying to 31 organizations. WFP supplies to 20 different UN organizations and procures from 29. UNOPS supplies to 25 other UN organizations and procures from 21. The information in this section highlights that UN organizations are currently engaging in a multitude of collaborative procurement transactions widely spread within the UN system.

ANNEX II - DISTRIBUTION OF COUNTRIES AND TERRITORIES

The country, regional and/or territorial distributions presented are for statistical convenience only and follow those used by the Statistics Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs (DESA) of the United Nations. They are grouped by economic criteria or membership of trade agreements for the purposes of statistical analysis and research.

There is no established convention for the designation of "developed" and "developing" countries or areas in the United Nations system. In common practice, Israel and Japan in Asia, Bermuda, Canada, Greenland, Saint Pierre et Miquelon, and the United States in northern America, Australia and New Zealand in Oceania, and Europe are considered "developed" regions or areas. This report includes all UN member states divided into four major categories: developing countries, transition economies, least developed countries and developed countries.

The designations employed do not imply the expression of any opinion whatsoever on the part of the United Nations concerning the legal status of any country, territory, city or area, or of its authorities, or concerning the delimitation of its frontiers or boundaries. They are intended for statistical convenience and do not necessarily express a judgement about the stage reached by a particular country or area in the development process.

ANNEX IV- NATIONAL IMPLEMENTATION MODALITY (NIM) – UNITED NATIONS DEVELOPMENT PROGRAMME

The NIM (National Implementation Modality) engagements is a separate and distinct activity at the heart of the operations of UNDP's projects. In line with its fiduciary duties to donors and its overall commitment to transparency in international aid, UNDP reports all programme expenditures through its transparency portal (open.undp.org). Consequently, UNDP procurement volume includes total values for NIM, where UNDP is directly or indirectly involved in projects with implementing partner. The Office of Sourcing and Operations provides comprehensive figures of the volume⁷⁵. The figure below shows the NIM values from 2013-2016.

Table 1. Total UNDP NIM engagements, 2013-2016 (in millions of US dollars)

NIM Values	2013	2014	2015	2016
Goods	$284,704,130.00	$96,478,890.20	$295,812,320.00	$222,412,370.00
Services	$1,136,689,890.00	$958,511,352.95	$984,699,580.00	$836,831,800.00
Total	$1,421,394,020.00	$1,054,990,243.16	$1,280,511,900.00	$1,059,244,170.00

Alignment – the use of local systems – is one of the five fundamental principles of the Paris Declaration for Aid Effectiveness (2005). UNDP promotes inclusive partnerships, ownership, capacity development and delivering results through National Implementation (NIM), a modality that provides a legal and accountability framework, as well as appropriate provisions and tools, in the context of country-level programming. NIM is a complex and critical part of what UNDP does.

When governments want to use their own procedures, UNDP assessments provide a way for country offices to determine their adequacy, identify potential gaps, and select specific procurement, human resources or financial modalities that will ensure transparency and strengthen capacities. Procurement arrangements assign roles and responsibilities to governments and UNDP country offices under full national implementation, with a deeper level of operational involvement where UNDP is the responsible party and provides procurement support. Under the NIM modality, the organization undertakes responsibilities in multiple ways throughout the procurement cycle: manage payments to suppliers through its ERP system; support governments in developing specifications and sourcing strategies; and, upon request, substantial operational involvement from UNDP. NIM projects result in the procurement of millions of dollars and the organization recruits experts, based in project teams or ministries, to ensure delivery targets are met.
