Introduction

United Nations procurement delivery in 2009 has marginally increased in comparison to previous years. The total United Nations procurement volume has increased by $203 million over the previous year, representing an increase of 1.5 percent. In terms of procurement of goods and services, agencies decreased their procurement of goods by $360 million and increased that of services by $563 million over 2008. The 2009 data further confirms that the UN's requirement for services exceeds that of goods, reversing the trend of previous years where the proportion of goods procured far outweighed that of services contracted.

The 2009 report analyzes procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition, and examines United Nations system performance in increasing opportunities for vendors in developing countries and countries with economies in transition. Significant progress has been made towards achieving that objective (refer to Figures 3 to 8 in the Executive Summary for more detail).

New for 2009, the report provides a comparative analysis of the agency share of goods and services categories procured by UN agencies.

In addition, the 2009 report looks at procurement by United Nations organizations from vendors that support the 'Global Compact'. The Compact measures engagement by the United Nations system with companies that take corporate social responsibility seriously, an increasingly important consideration in the global marketplace. While United Nations organizations give no preferential treatment to Compact signatories, the volume of procurement with registered Global Compact vendors shows an average increase over the period 2006-2009.

The 2009 statistical report features an annual thematic supplement, now in its second year, that focuses on current issues in procurement. The focus of the 2009 supplement is on emerging issues relating to procurement from developing countries. It includes an overview of the international debate on the subject, case studies and contributions from practitioners and international experts.

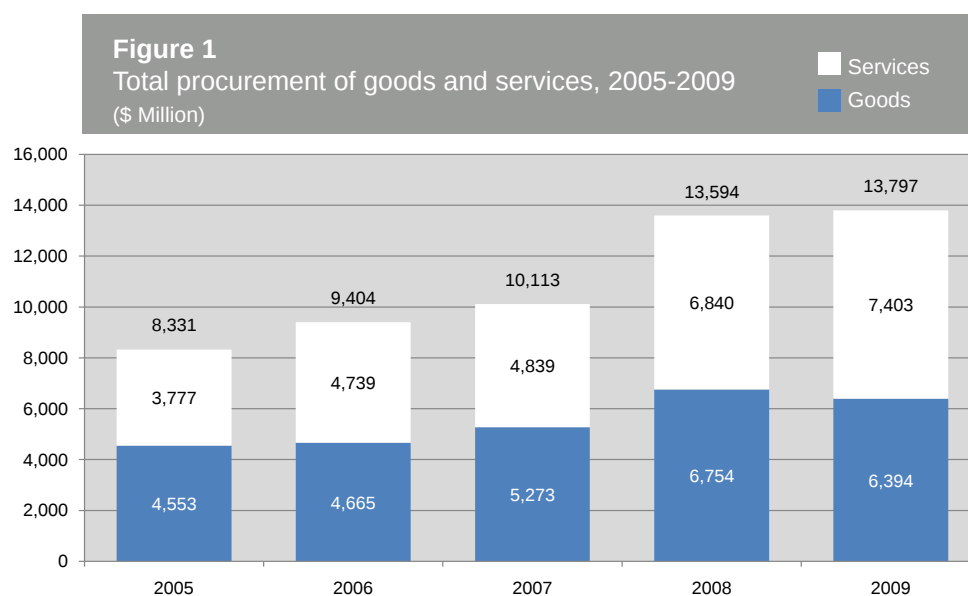

Glossary of terms

All sources of UN funding:	Covers technical cooperation and other development assistance from regular, extra budgetary and trust funds, as well as emergency, humanitarian and peacekeeping operations.
Development Assistance Committee (DAC) member countries:	A key forum of major bilateral donors who work together to increase the effectiveness of their common efforts to support sustainable development. DAC consists of 22 member countries as well as the Commission of the European Communities.
Developing countries and countries with economies in transition (DC/ET):	Countries for which the United Nations provides financial/technical assistance. A list of these countries is attached as Annex 2.
Fellowships:	Scholarships and study tours awarded to individuals for study and training within various operational activity programmes. Activities which do not involve individual award of a scholarship, such as group training and seminars, are not included.
Goods:	Includes both equipment and supplies.
International Project Personnel:	Experts and consultants hired internationally for technical cooperation activities.
National Project Personnel:	National personnel of all categories, including experts and consultants, hired locally for technical cooperation activities.
Procurement:	The acquisition of goods and services.
Services:	Contracts with companies/contractors or consulting firms. This does not include the hiring of individual experts and consultants.

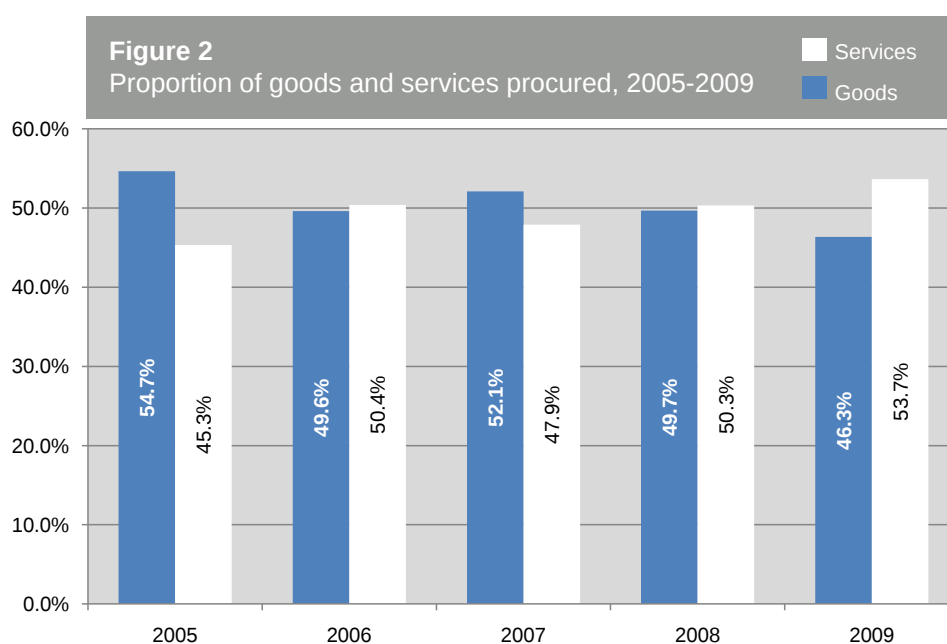

Executive Summary

Total procurement of goods and services for operational activities of the UN system

The overall procurement volume (goods and services combined) of United Nations organizations during 2009 increased to $13.8 billion, from $13.6 billion in 2008 – a gain of 1.5 percent. The total procurement of goods decreased by $360 million, a reduction of 5.3 percent, while procurement of services grew by $563 million, an increase of 8.2 percent. Between 2005 and 2009, United Nations procurement volume increased from $8.3 billion to $13.8 billion, primarily attributable to a $3.6 billion growth in the procurement of services in the same period.

From 2005 to 2009, United Nations system procurement of services rose as a share of total procurement, slightly overtaking the procurement share of goods for the first time in 2006 and again in 2008, increasing even further in 2009. In 2009, the share of services exceeded that of goods by 7.3 percent compared to just 0.6 percent in 2008, representing the largest increase in the history of the Annual Statistical Report.

Ten major countries of supply to the UN system in 2009

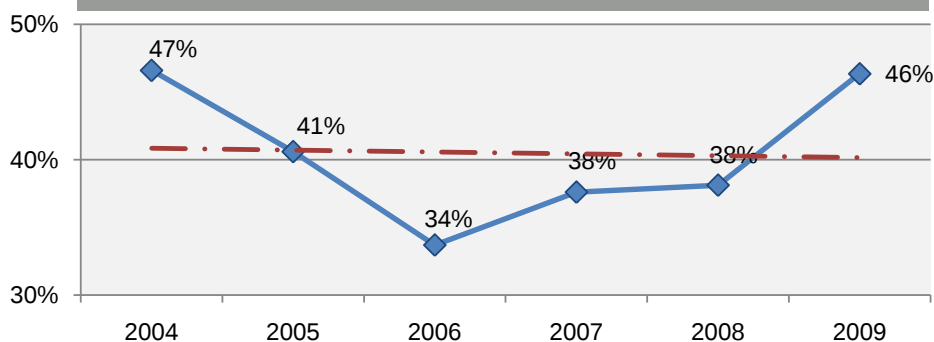

The 10 major countries to supply United Nations organizations in 2009 included three developing countries – India, Sudan and Afghanistan. India has featured in this list since 2000, and in 2009, was the third largest supplier to the United Nations system, with a 4.9 percent share of total United Nations procurement volume. Procurement from India includes vaccines, pharmaceuticals and medical equipment purchased primarily by UNICEF. Procurement from Afghanistan consisted primarily of construction and transport services executed through national contractors by UNDP and UNOPS respectively. Procurement from Sudan also consisted of construction and transport services as well as fuel oils procured by the United Nations Procurement Division (UN/PD) and WFP.

The percentage share of total goods and services procured from the top 10 major countries of supply to the United Nations system had a promising decreasing trend between 2004 and 2006 and thereby broadening the geographical spread of UN procurement. Between 2006 and 2009 (see Figure 3) this downward trend has reversed and the procurement share of the top ten countries of supply to the United Nations has increased. During this period the percentage share has increased by 12 percent, the 2009 level of 46 percent is however, only one percent lower than the level recorded in 2004.

Procurement by UN agencies in 2008-2009

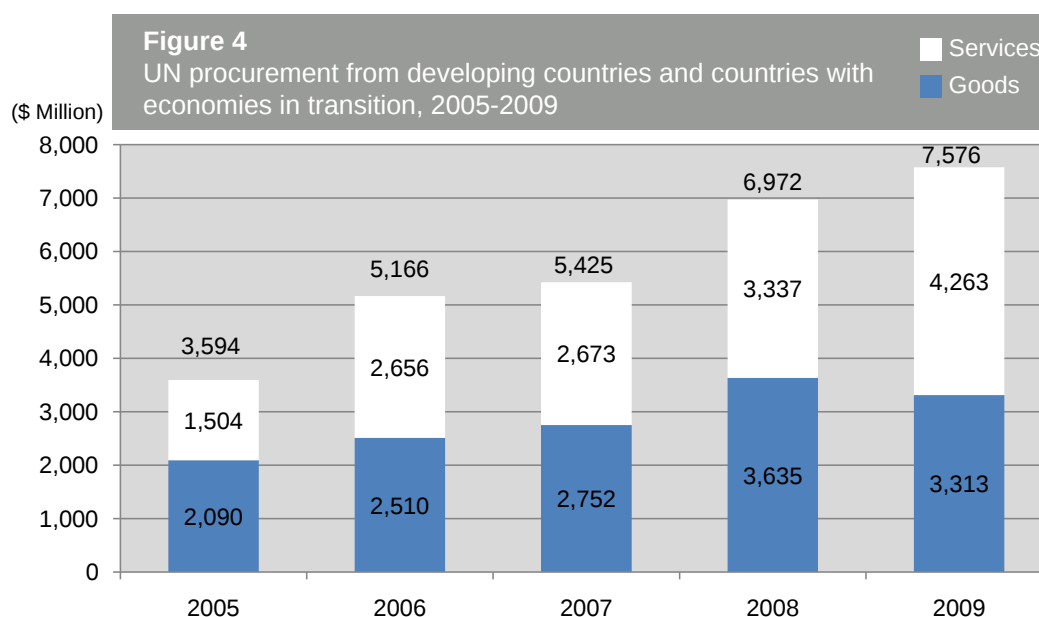

The following table lists the procurement volume of individual United Nations organizations in 2008 and 2009. Data are presented by the percentage share from developing countries and those with economies in transition. Although the increase of the total procurement volume from 2008 to 2009 was minor, 21 of the 33 reporting United Nations organizations increased their procurement volume over the previous year. The United Nations Procurement Division (UN/PD) and UNICEF recorded the largest volume increases, both increasing their volume by some $300 million.

Procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition

General Assembly resolution 57/279 on procurement reform (specifically paragraph 6), encouraged United Nations organizations to increase sourcing opportunities for suppliers from developing countries and countries with economies in transition. General Assembly resolution 61/246 (specifically paragraph 24), reiterated this request. In response, United Nations organizations attempted to place more orders with suppliers from these countries. The growth of such orders has more than doubled in dollar terms from 2005 to 2009, as shown in Figure 4.

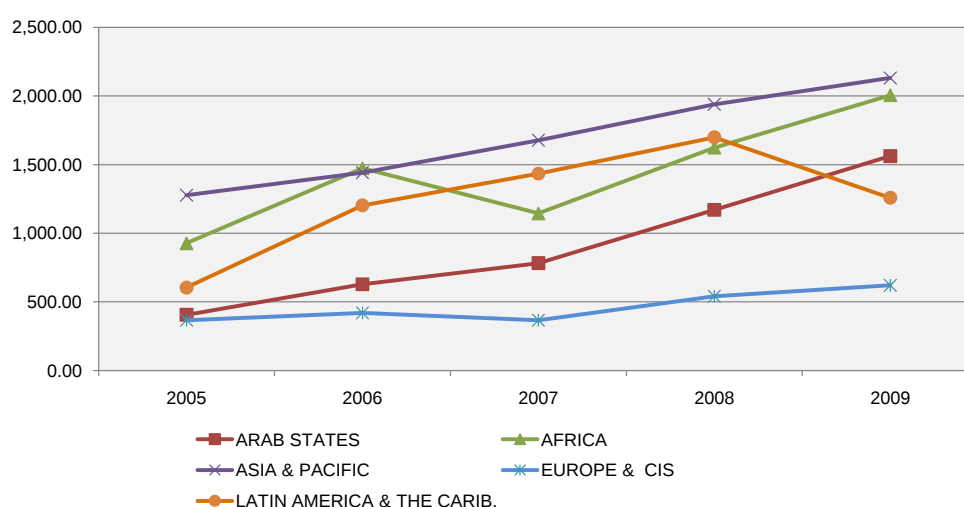

In 2009 procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition increased by almost $1 billion over 2008 further building upon the $1.5 billion increase from 2007 to 2008. Of note, procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition has increased from 51.3 percent in 2008 to 54.9 percent of total United Nations procurement volume in 2009, while procurement from industrialized countries increased from 37.9 percent in 2008 to 43.9 percent in 2009. Procurement from unspecified countries decreased from $1.4 billion to $0.15 billion in 2009. Countries remain unspecified when organizations cannot attribute the origin of the supplier in their management information systems. This substantial decrease is due to WFP now being able to provide the origin of transportation services, which in previous years accounted for up to $1.2 billion in procurement from unspecified countries.

Procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition by region

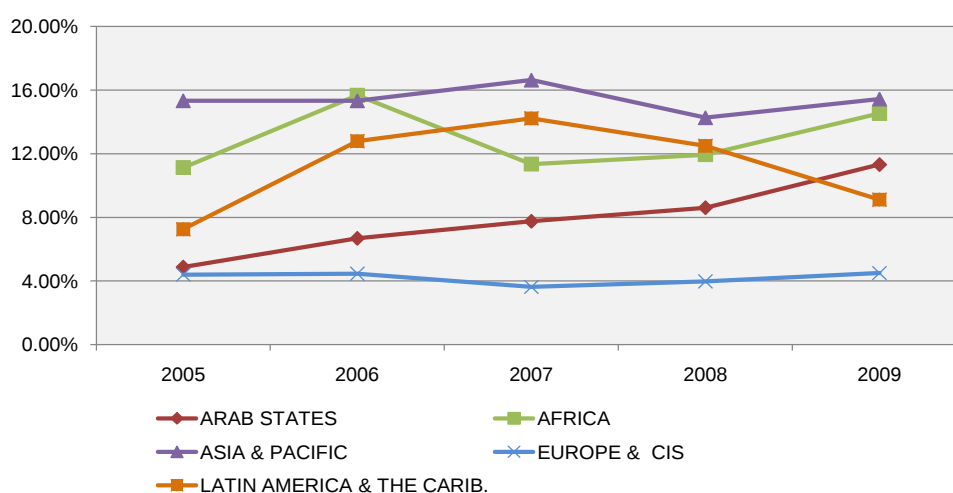

An analysis of United Nations procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition by region, since 2005, shows that all regions except Latin America and the Caribbean states experienced growth in their share of procurement from the United Nations organizations. Procurement from Latin America and the Caribbean states decreased by $441 million from 2008 to 2009. While Africa experienced rapid growth in procurement business with the United Nations from 2005 to 2006, its share declined in 2007 but has since increased by $478.9 million in 2008 and by a further $382 million in 2009. The Arab, Asia & Pacific and Europe & CIS regions have enjoyed steady growth in the period from 2005 to 2009.

UN procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition by region, 2005-2009
($ Million)

Regional data on percentage share of United Nations procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition show that all regions except the Latin American and Caribbean states have seen an upward trend in procurement business. The percentage share of United Nations procurement from the Latin American & the Caribbean states has decreased from 2007 to 2009 by five percent. The Asia & Pacific region while experiencing a decrease in procurement share from 2007 to 2008 has recovered by 1.2 percent in 2009.

Figure 8 presents percentage of procurement volume by the 10 largest United Nations organizations (accounting for 94 percent of total procurement), from developing countries and countries with economies in transition in 2009, as well as the percentage of changes compared with 2008. Organizations are listed in descending order by total volume in millions of dollars, detailed on the right of Figure 8 below.

Top 20 developing countries and countries with economies in transition supplying UN operations in 2009

In total, procurement of goods and services from the top 20 developing countries and countries with economies in transition represents 34 percent of overall United Nations procurement volume, an increase of 2.1 percentage points over 2008. For a detailed overview of procurement volume trends, categories of goods and services procured, as well as United Nations organizations' shares for each of the countries listed in Table 3, please refer to the complete 2009 Annual Statistical Report on United Nations Procurement, available at www.ungm.org/Info/Publications.

United Nations Procurement and the Global Compact

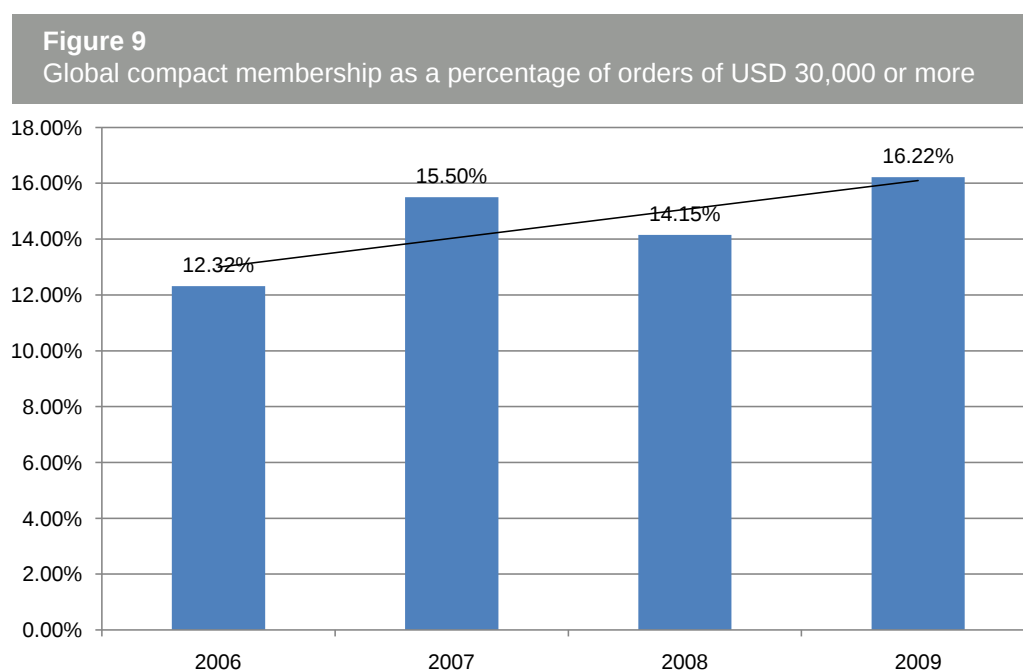

UN agencies, in cooperation with their suppliers, are increasingly trying to 'buy for a better world'. They are looking beyond traditional economic parameters to make decisions based on life-cycle costs and associated environmental and social implications, to help producers - especially in the developing world - become more efficient and competitive in larger markets.

For the third year, the Annual Statistical Report 2009 features an analysis of the participation of UN suppliers in the world's largest global corporate citizenship initiative, the Global Compact.

- In 1999, the United Nations Secretary General Kofi Annan challenged the business leaders gathered at the World Economic Forum in Davos to develop greater social and environmental responsibility in their business activities. He offered them a new compact of shared values and principles, to give a human face to the global market: the Global Compact.
- The Global Compact is a framework for businesses that are committed to aligning their operations and strategies with ten universally accepted principles in the areas of human rights, labour, the environment and anti-corruption. As the world's largest global corporate citizenship initiative, the Global Compact is a voluntary scheme, a learning dialogue and a platform for action.

Procurement from Global Compact members as a percentage of orders of $30,000 or more

The percentage of United Nations procurement volume which comes from contracts with Global Compact members has increased over the period 2006-2009, reaching 16.22 percent in 2009.

Global Compact Geographical Origin according to the volume of orders

Year	Total contracts of USD 30,000 or more ($ Million)	Procurement from Global Compact members	%
2007	6,819	1,057	15.50%
2008	9,333	1,321	14.15%
2009	10,964	1,778	16.22%

Global Compact membership is still limited among UN suppliers in developing countries, with the large majority of orders placed with Global Compact members located in developed countries. Between 2007 and 2008 the share of UN suppliers from developing countries adhering to the Global Compact has grown. However in 2009 participation among North American suppliers more than doubled, causing a contraction of the percentage share of suppliers from Europe, Africa and Central/South America.

Sustainability reporting in the UN System

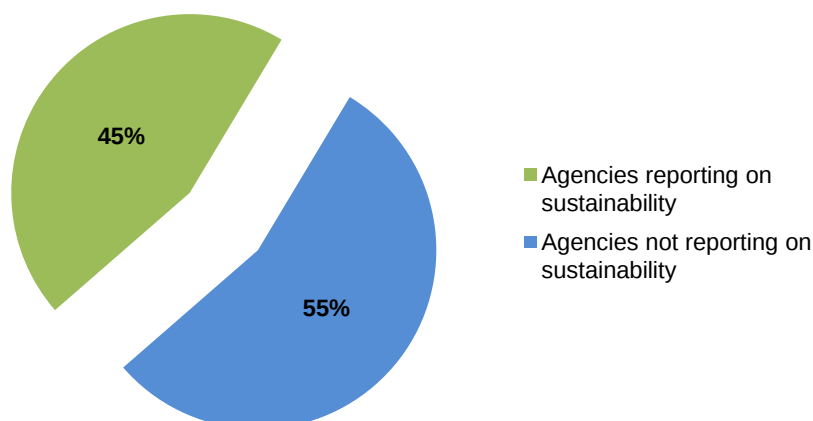

The United Nations has an impact on the economic, environmental and social fabric where it operates. Acknowledging this, in 2009 the UN committed to achieving climate neutrality and overall environmental sustainability through the medium of a system-wide initiative. At the same time, the UN is increasingly focussed on promoting environmentally and socially sustainable development through both its operations and its procurement processes. Open and transparent management of UN operations and the use of donor funds are in the best interest of UN stakeholders and the international community. For these reasons, a sustainability reporting system has been introduced.

For the second year running, the Annual Statistical Report contains a section on sustainability reporting, focusing on two key areas of sustainability performance for the UN:

- sustainable procurement, and
- environmentally friendly office management

Out of the 30 agencies that returned statistical information, 44.8 percent provided (in whole or in part) information on their sustainability performance. This result confirms that sustainability reporting, despite difficulties in collecting information, is growing within the UN.

Sustainability reporting among UN agencies

As far as the framework for sustainable procurement is concerned the report reflects the progress made by some sustainability leaders in the UN system. The International Trade Center (ITC) and the United Nations Office at Nairobi (UNON) have adopted a sustainable procurement policy, and The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), United Nations Volunteers (UNV) and the United Nations Office for Project Services (UNOPS) have it planned for 2010.

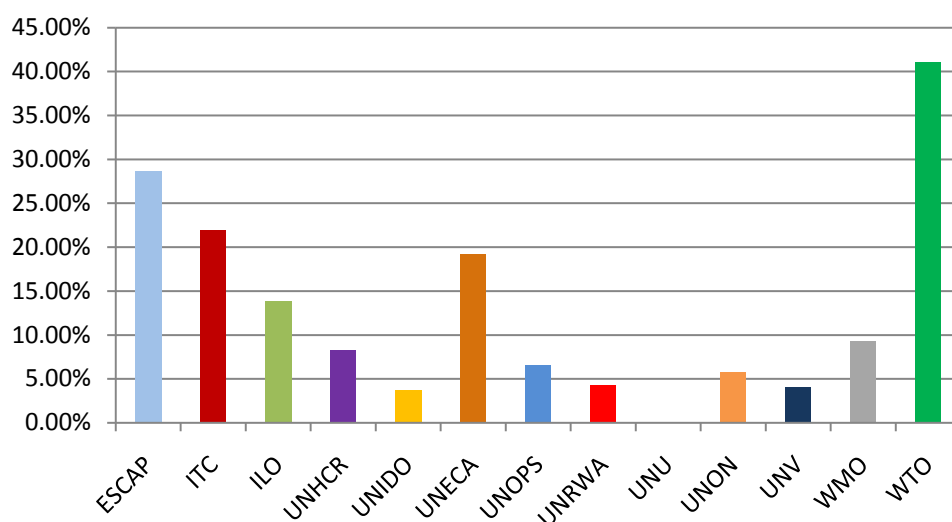

The same goes for the implementation of a sustainable procurement programme, initiated by ITC and UNOPS, and planned for 2010 in UNHCR and UNV. While waiting for a General Assembly decision on sustainable procurement, United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP) makes attempts to include environmentally friendly specifications in its solicitation documents. Sustainable procurement training is also reaching more UN staff: ESCAP (18%), ILO (9%), and UNHCR (28%) trained a number of their procurement staff in 2009. ITC and United Nations Industrial Development Organization (UNIDO) propose the UN Supplier Code of Conduct to their suppliers for endorsement, and this has resulted in a very high level of buy-in from the suppliers' side.

In ITC the UN Sustainable Procurement Product Guidelines are regularly applied for the purchase of relevant goods. In UNON, the Guidelines are not mandatory, but they are provided to vendors as part of the bid documentation, in order to foster the replication of best practices.

However, some agencies are already moving forward and have reported best practice cases. In 2009 ESCAP procured 15,905 reams of paper, 100 percent of which was recycled. ITC uses Forestry Stewardship Council (FSC) paper only for office use and publications; it makes extensive use of the UN Sustainable Procurement Product Guidelines when purchasing cleaning products (90%), office stationery (60%) and office furniture (100%). UNIDO uses 100 percent recycled paper, and follows the Sustainable Procurement Guidelines when purchasing cleaning products and office IT equipment (100%); it also organises 'green' meetings, to reduce their environmental impact. In UNV 86 percent of office paper is recycled and 100 percent of cleaning products are purchased according to the Sustainable Procurement Guidelines.

For the second year, the participation of suppliers from the reporting agencies in the Global Compact initiative has been analysed. Procurement statistics on contracts above $30,000 have been cross checked with the list of Global Compact participants; the result shows a quite diverse level of participation among agencies:

Percentage of expenditure with Global Compact suppliers

The use of resources and materials and the production of office waste have also been explored within the theme of environmental office performance. Considering the complexity of the reporting task - including material use, water withdrawal, waste production, electricity consumption – it is noticeable that more agencies have reported on these indicators compared to last year.

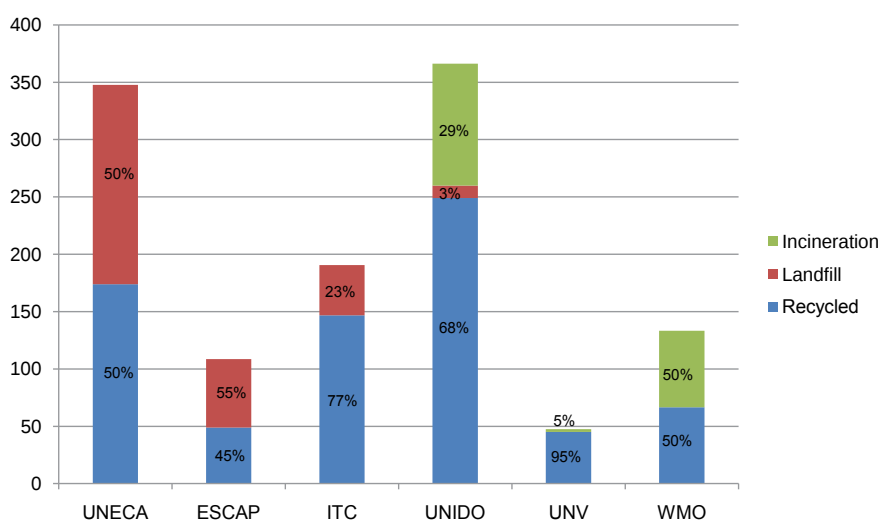

The first table below illustrates the consumption of water in relation to the number of office occupants – which varies largely from agency to agency.

Water consumption by agency in metres cubed per occupant

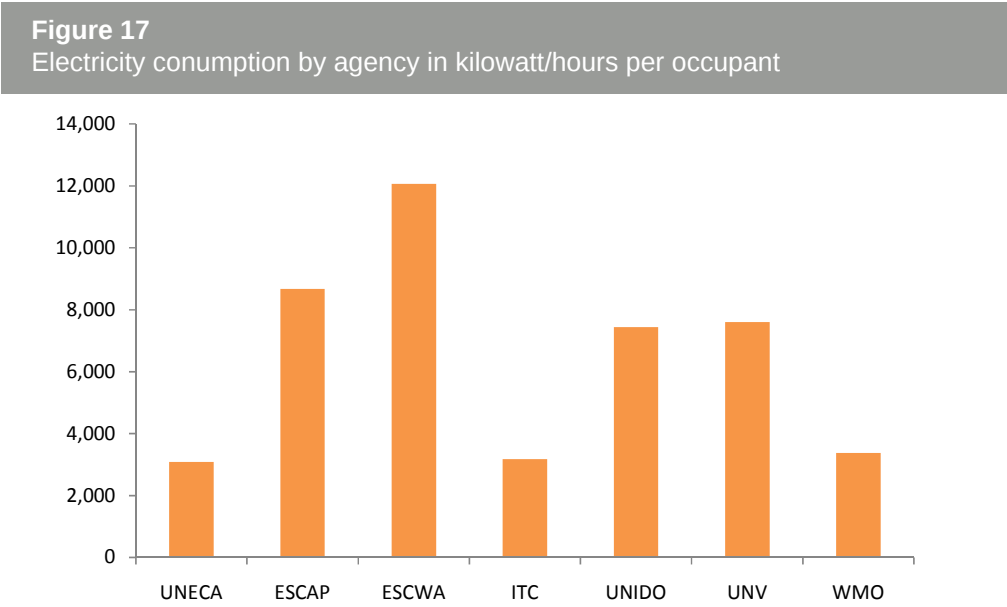

The second table on waste production and management provides information not only on the amount of waste produced (in kilograms per office occupant), but also on the disposal system. According to the waste hierarchy, recycling is the most favoured option, followed by energy recovery (incineration) with disposal in landfill being the least favoured option.

Waste production (kilogram per occupant) and disposal method by agency

Finally, the third table shows the level of energy consumption per office occupant across seven reporting agencies.

In addition to these statistical indicators, some agencies have provided examples of best practice in sustainability and environmental management.

- For its headquarters building in Geneva, the World Meteorological Organization (WMO) uses a system of underground pipes to harness geothermal energy to cool and heat the building. A double façade on the building also enhances isolation and limits energy loss. The lighting system is based on automatic sensors that activate lighting and rationalise energy use.
- ESCAP has a green office initiative at its headquarters in Bangkok. All photocopiers and fax machines have been Energy Star certified since the end of 2006. Recycling facilities are provided to staff throughout the building, and the waste water system has been converted to deliver recycled waste water to the gardens. Awareness raising posters and reminders are used to encourage staff to recycle, save energy and avoid air conditioning losses.

The objective for future reporting is to receive more information, of a higher quality, from a larger number of agencies. While acknowledging that the report may show some limitations in its initial years, it is anticipated that it will send the right signal to the international community, UN suppliers and the market at large as well as to other stakeholders.

About the report

Background

The first annual statistical report on procurement by UN agencies in respect of operational activities, prepared by the Inter-Agency Procurement Services Office (IAPSO) of the United Nations Development Programme, was submitted to the 39th session of the General Assembly (Doc. A/39/417) in 1984. By resolution 39/220 the General Assembly established the need for recurrent reporting of such information on operational activities and encouraged organizations of the UN system to co-operate in this important exercise. Since 2008 the report has been compiled by UNOPS.

Methodology

Statistical data on procurement of goods and services and the personnel components for operational activities are requested from UN organizations. To facilitate collection and compilation of the large amount of data, UNOPS provides pro forma tables available from the UNGM website, together with instructions for completing the reporting requirements.

The 2009 report compiles information supplied by 36 UN organizations in total (of which 33 provided procurement data and only nine personnel data). UNOPS relies entirely on the co-operation of the reporting entities. In general, response rates were satisfactory and data quality has improved with the use of better reporting tools. Three UN entities did not provide data for 2009.

Data are reported on goods, based on country of supply and on services, depending on the location of contractor's head office. Procurement orders and contracts for services are reported by contract amount and rather than expenditures incurred. Most UN agencies are unable to report data based on country of origin of goods, or on actual expenditures, at the present time.
