United Nations Procurement statistics now available online

Together with the publication of the 2015 Annual Statistical Report on United Nations Procurement (ASR), an online version of the report and statistics will be made available for the first time. This online version of the ASR will provide the possibility to analyse the procurement statistics electronically, with ability to search and filter by United Nations organizations, supplier countries and categories of goods and services. When launched, procurement statistics from 2013 to 2015 will be made available.
The online ASR is available at www.ungm.org/public/asr.

Advocacy for equality and empowerment of women and young girls, Cambodia

Sopheap 35, has been an entertainment worker since 2007 and supports her mother, niece and two sons with her earnings, as well as sending money home to her brothers and sisters. She used to grow vegetables and fruit and sell them in the market but couldn't make ends meet. She always liked to sing and used to be on local TV shows, but when she got married she was no longer invited. Her husband lives in the US and she only sees him sporadically. She started her career as an entertainment worker singing in a restaurant, but a year ago switched to her current workplace a beer hall.

Data: total UN procurement from Cambodia in 2015: 18.87 million USD

Glossary of terms

Countries	Throughout this report, the terminology “country” or “countries” refers to countries and territories as defined by the Statistics Division of the United Nations Secretariat. In all, there are 241 countries and territories. The designations employed do not imply the expression of any opinion whatsoever on the part of the United Nations concerning the legal status of any country, territory, city or area or of its authorities, or concerning the delimitation of its frontiers or boundaries. The assignment of countries or areas to specific groupings is for statistical convenience and does not imply any assumption regarding political or other affiliation of countries or territories by the United Nations.
Development Assistance Committee (DAC) member countries	A key forum of major bilateral donors, DAC Member Countries work together to increase the effectiveness of their common efforts to support sustainable development. The DAC consists of 28 Member Countries, as well as the European Union[1].
Developed countries; Developing countries; Economies in transition; and least developed countries	For analytical purposes, this report adopts the United Nations classification of the world into these broad categories. A composition of these groupings, provided in Annex II to Annex V, is intended to reflect the countries for which the United Nations provides financial/technical assistance. Please note that there is no established convention for the classification of countries within the United Nations system.
Goods	Objects of every kind and descriptions, including raw materials, products and equipment and objects in solid, liquid or gaseous form, and electricity, as well as services incidental to the supply of the goods if the value of those incidental services does not exceed that of the goods themselves.
Member States	In all, 193 sovereign states are recognized Members of the United Nations, and the United Nations General Assembly. Membership in the United Nations is open to all peace-loving states which accept the obligations contained in the present Charter[2] and, in the judgement of the Organization, are able and willing to carry out these obligations.
Organizations of the United Nations system	Throughout this report, the terminology “United Nations organization(s)” refers to the United Nations, its subsidiary bodies – including separately administered funds and programmes – specialized agencies, research and training institutes, and other subsidiary entities.
Procurement	The acquisition through purchase or lease of real property, goods or other products (including intellectual property), works or services
Services	Work, duty or labour performed by a contractor pursuant to a contract. Rendering of services may involve the associated provision of utilities or facilities if specified in the terms of the contract. Typical examples of services include security, catering, cleaning, travel management, event management, IT services, training, freight forwarding, and consulting.

Standard country and area code classification (M49):	This report presents procurement statistics from countries and territories that follow the United Nations standard country, area and region classification as defined by the Statistics Division of the United Nations Secretariat for statistical use. For more information on this classification, please visit: www.unstats.un.org/unsd/methods/m49/m49.htm
Sustainable procurement	Sustainable procurement practices integrate requirements, specifications and criteria that are compatible and in favour of the protection of the environment, of social progress and in support of economic development, namely by seeking resource efficiency, improving the quality of products and services and ultimately optimizing costs.
United Nations Global Compact	The UN Global Compact is a strategic policy initiative for businesses that are committed to aligning their operations and strategies with ten universally accepted principles in the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. By doing so, business, as a primary driver of globalization, can help ensure that markets, commerce, technology and finance advance in ways that benefit economies and societies everywhere[3].
United Nations Standard Products and Services Code (UNSPSC®)	The UNSPSC® is a publicly available multi-sector standard for classification of goods and services. It is a four-level category hierarchy presented as an eight-digit number; the four-levels are segment, family, class and commodity. For the 2015 ASR, procurement of goods and services are reported on segment or family level. The UNSPSC® is available in 10 languages[4].

Introduction

The Annual Statistical Report on United Nations Procurement (ASR) provides an overview of the procurement of the United Nations system in support of its operations, projects and programmes. The report provides a range of information about the categories of goods and services procured by the United Nations system, as well as the countries from which these goods and services were procured.

The 2015 version of the ASR is the 32nd edition of this publication, which was first presented in 1984. It was prepared by the Inter-Agency Procurement Services Office (IAPSO) of the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and submitted to the 39th session of the General Assembly. By Resolution 39/220, the General Assembly established a need for regular reporting of this type of information and encouraged organizations of the United Nations system to participate in this important exercise. Since 2008 the report has been compiled by the United Nations Office for Project Services (UNOPS).

The Report includes statistics on procurement by UN organizations and by supplier/contractor country, including major purchase orders and contracts[5] of United Nations organizations. This year, a number of changes have been incorporated into the report:

- In previous years, the ASR has focused on procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition. From this year onwards, the ASR will also include analysis of procurement from least developed countries
- To aid in gaining a better understanding of procurement by the United Nations, more emphasis is put on analysis and reporting on the variety of categories of goods and services procured
- A new section highlighting the procurement of individual UN organizations has replaced the previous section on the Top ten categories of procurement by UN organizations
- To enhance readability, major purchase orders for goods and contracts for services are now reported in one table
- The report is now supported with the availability of an online version of the different sections of the report to assist in conducting further queries etc. into the statistics. Visit www.ungm.org/public/asr
- A procurement profile is now available for every member state online.

In the context of the UN's continued focus on sustainable development, the information conveyed by the ASR is also supplemented by sustainable procurement (SP) indicators. For last year's report, a revised set of questions was developed for the participating UN organizations, which provided a better understanding of the UN system's performance in terms of sustainable procurement implementation. The reporting framework provides a baseline on which progress regarding the integration of SP in the UN system can be measured.

Since 2007, the ASR has examined procurement by UN organizations from suppliers that support the United Nations Global Compact.[6] This section of the report measures procurement by the UN system from suppliers that are United Nations Global Compact (UNGC) participants, and as such embrace universal principles in the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. The UN system does not give preferential treatment to UNGC signatories, but strongly encourages suppliers to subscribe and support its underpinning principles.

Since 2008[7], the ASR has also featured a thematic supplement that focuses on a noteworthy topic in procurement. This year's supplement, Future Proofing Procurement, profiles what different organizations and thought leaders in the public, private and academic arenas are doing to enable supply chains and procurement functions to be ready for the future. The thematic supplement will be available for download from the same sources as the ASR.

[7] For the 2014 ASR, no thematic supplement was published

This publication has been produced by UNOPS on behalf of the organizations of the UN system. UNOPS is grateful to UN organizations for their continuous support and contributions that make this publication possible. UNOPS hopes that this report provides useful information on the broad spectrum of procurement by the UN system, and continually strives to improve and refine the report to better meet the expectations and objectives of the UN Member States, donors, the business community and UN organizations.[8]

Methodology

UNOPS relies on participating UN organizations in the compilation and reporting of the statistics. The 2015 report compiles information supplied by 36 United Nations organizations in total, which is an increase from 35 organizations that provided data for the 2014 report. This year, the report again includes information from the United Nations Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific, and the Universal Postal Union, whereas the International Monetary Fund (IMF) did not submit their procurement data this year.

The statistical data on procurement of goods and services for operational activities is requested from UN organizations in the form of data on purchase orders raised in 2015. In addition to purchase order data, UNDP has also reported on the total value of their National Implementation Modality, through which UNDP is directly or indirectly involved in projects with implementing partners. This represents approximately $1.2 billion of the total procurement volume reported for 2015. For this year, to simplify, optimize and automate the data collection and compilation processes, utilizing the data available in information systems of the participating UN organizations, an online data-upload tool was developed. Participating organizations were requested to submit their data through the tool, whereby it was automatically validated and consolidated. To facilitate the online submission of data, UNOPS provided templates, together with instructions and guidelines to complete the reporting requirements.

The country data in the category “goods” is based on the country of supplier; the data in the category “services” is based on the country of contractor. Moreover, purchase orders and contracts for services are reported by contract amount and not by expenditures incurred. Due to the technical limitation of the procurement systems in use, many UN organizations cannot report data based on country of origin of goods, or on actual expenditures at the present time.

To enable reporting on categories of goods and services across all UN organizations, the participating organizations are requested to provide procurement data base on the United Nations Standard Products and Services Code (UNSPSC®)[9], or to provide mapping tables of own internal category codes to the corresponding UNSPSC® code. This year, to facilitate a more detailed reporting on categories, the participating organizations were encouraged to provide more granular detail of their procurement: in previous years, participating organizations were required to provide category data on UNSPSC® segment level, whereas this year, data was requested on UNSPSC® family level[10].

The categorization of countries and territories used in the ASR adhere to those used by the Statistics Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs. The report uses the following designations: developing countries, countries with economies in transition, developed countries and least developed countries. The designations “developing”, “in transition”, “least developed” and “developed” are intended for statistical convenience and do not express judgment about the stage reached by a particular country or area in the development process.

The UN Annual Statistical Report presents all data in US dollars. Some organizations, have their budgets and accounting in currencies other than US dollars thereby necessitating currency conversion using an average annual conversion rate. Due to extreme exchange rate fluctuations, data presented in US dollars may show trends in terms of procurement volume increases or decreases that are the reciprocal of the trend shown by the data in the original currency.

United Nations reporting on sustainable procurement

As in previous years, to enable reporting on the extent to which UN organizations have begun to integrate sustainability considerations into their procurement processes, a voluntary online survey with 13 questions was also conducted, in parallel with the data collection process for the Annual Statistical Report.

Recognizing some of the current limitations that exist in capturing sustainable procurement (SP) data[11], the survey included both qualitative and quantitative metrics on SP, across the following key themes:

1. Policy and strategy
2. Integration in procurement process
3. Supplier engagement
4. UN Global Compact

To facilitate the data collection process and enhance the quality of the answers received, several questions were removed or modified from the previous year's survey and some new ones were added. These changes were based on feedback received from participants over the previous three years.

In total, 32 out of 36 organizations responded to the survey (88 per cent response rate), 3 more than in 2014, and collectively representing 79 per cent of the total UN procurement spend for 2015.[12]

The analysis presented in the SP section does not reflect any judgements on any individual organization's progress on SP. Rather it provides a snapshot of noteworthy trends within the UN system.

United Nations report on Global Compact

For the analysis of procurement from UNGC participants, purchase order (PO) data (organized by supplier name and country) from all UN organizations that submitted data for the full ASR, was cross-referenced with the list of UNGC participants as of 31 December 2015. For the purpose of consistency with previous years reports, POs under $30,000 as well as POs for which the supplier's name was removed (e.g. for security reasons), were excluded from the analysis.

[11] Many organizations that responded to the survey noted that their internal ERP systems are not set up to track the amount of SP conducted by their offices. As a result, the numbers provided in the report are estimates.

[12] This does not imply that 79 per cent of all UN procurement included SP considerations in their processes.

Executive summary

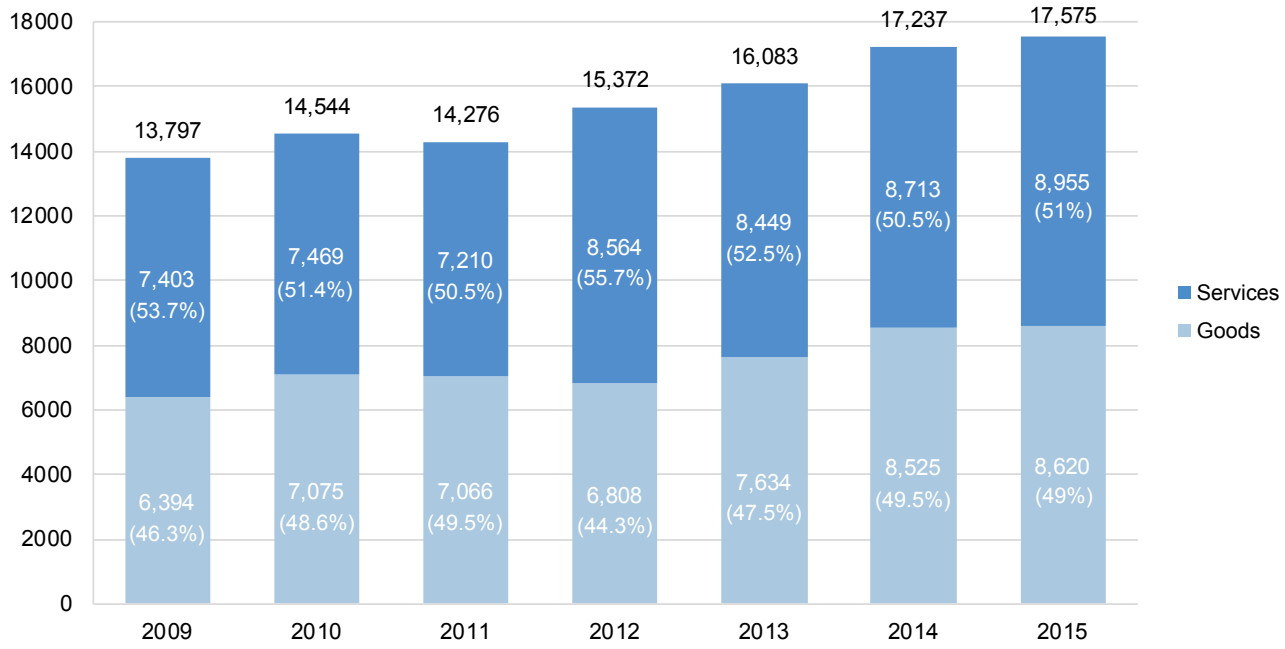
Executive Summary

Total procurement of goods and services for operational activities of the UN system

The overall procurement volume (goods and services combined) of UN organizations in 2015 increased to $17.6 billion, from $17.2 billion in 2014 – an increase of 2.0 per cent[13] (Figure 1).

Figure 1

Total procurement of goods and services, 2009-2015
(in millions of US dollars and percentage)



The increase in the overall procurement volume from 2014 to 2015 is mainly attributable to a rise in volume from UNDP[14]. This increase was due in part to a large rise in the procurement of pharmaceuticals, and an increase in the reporting of activity related to UNDP's National Implementation Modality.

Since 2008[15], the procurement of services by the UN system has exceeded its procurement of goods, which continues to be evident in 2015. In 2015, the total procurement of goods increased by $95.4 million, an increase of 1.1 per cent, while procurement of services increased by $242.5 million, a raise of 2.8 per cent.

United Nations procurement volume has steadily increased over a number of years, reaching the $5 billion mark in 2003, the $10 billion mark in 2007 and the $15 billion in 2012[16]. The overall increase from 2009 to 2015 is attributable to an overall increase in procurement activities of the United Nations system as a whole, but some organizations have increased more than others; the increase in volume since 2009 is mainly attributable to a rise in volume from three organizations: the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) with $1,599 million, UNDP with $1,126 million and the World Health Organization (WHO) with $770 million. United Nations Procurement Division (UNPD) declined slightly during the same period with $399 million)[17].

[13] This year, 36 UN organizations reported procurement statistics as compared to 35 in 2014. This change in participating agencies represents a net value change of -$157.9 million of the total increase in UN procurement volume.

[14] UNDP's procurement volume increased with $451.3 million from 2014 to 2015. UNDP procurement volume for 2015 also includes total values of their National Implementation Modality (NIM), through which UNDP are directly or indirectly involved in projects with implementing partners. For 2015, the reported NIM volume was approximately $1.2 billion.

Countries of supply to the UN in 2015

The UN system procured goods and services from 224 different countries and territories in 2015, with 124 of these having an annual procurement volume of more than $10 million each in 2015. The next sections of the ASR summarize the UN system's performance in increasing opportunities for suppliers in developing countries. In previous years, this section of the report highlighted the UN's procurement from developing countries and countries with economies in transition. From this report and onwards, emphasis will also be made on procurement from the 48 least developed countries. For more detailed analysis, please see Procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries, and least developed countries section.

Ten major countries of supply to the UN system in 2015

The 10 major countries supplying UN organizations in 2015 represented 44.8 per cent of the total UN procurement volume, an increase from 43.2 per cent in 2014. This included one least developed country (Afghanistan) and three developing countries (India, Kenya and the United Arab Emirates) accounting for $3.16 billion, or 18.0 per cent of the total UN procurement volume (Table 1).

In 2015, procurement of goods and services from Kenya represented 2.5 per cent of the total procurement volume. Procurement from Kenya consisted primarily of cargo transportation services, construction services and fuel. Goods and services from Kenya were primarily procured by the World Food Programme (WFP), UNPD, the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and UNICEF.

Afghanistan has featured as a top ten supplier country since 2004, and in 2015, moved from the third- to the sixth-largest country to supply the UN system. This fall is mainly attributable to a decrease in procurement from UNPD. Procurement from Afghanistan consisted primarily of engineering services, management services, and rural development services. Goods and services from Afghanistan were primarily procured by UNDP, UNOPS and WFP.

The United Arab Emirates has featured as a top ten supplier country since 2013 and is now the third-largest country to supply the UN, with a share of total procurement volume in 2015 of 4.6 per cent. Procurement from the United Arab Emirates consisted primarily of fuel, food products, construction services and shelter equipment. Goods and services from the United Arab Emirates were primarily procured by UNPD, UNHCR, WFP and UNICEF.

India has featured as a top ten major country to supply UN organizations since 2000, and has maintained its position as the second-largest country of supply to the UN system in 2015, with a 7.3 per cent share of total UN procurement volume. This is the third-consecutive year where procurement from India was more than $1 billion in volume. Procurement from India included pharmaceuticals, nutritional supplements, medical equipment and management services. Goods and services from India were procured primarily by UNICEF, UNDP, the Pan American Health Organization and WFP. With a total volume of $994.0 million in 2015, India continues to be the largest country to supply to UN organizations with health-related goods and services.

Procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries

General Assembly Resolution 57/279 (2005) on procurement reform encourages UN organizations to increase opportunities for suppliers from developing countries and countries with economies in transition. In 2007, General Assembly Resolution 61/246 (2007), reiterated the request to consider procurement from developing countries. In response, UN organizations have placed more orders with suppliers from these countries.

In 2015, the procurement volume from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries increased to $10.8 billion[18] (Figure 2), with a cumulative increase of 43.2 per cent from 2009 to 2015[19]. In comparison, the cumulative increase in procurement volume from developed countries was 8.2 per cent for the same period.

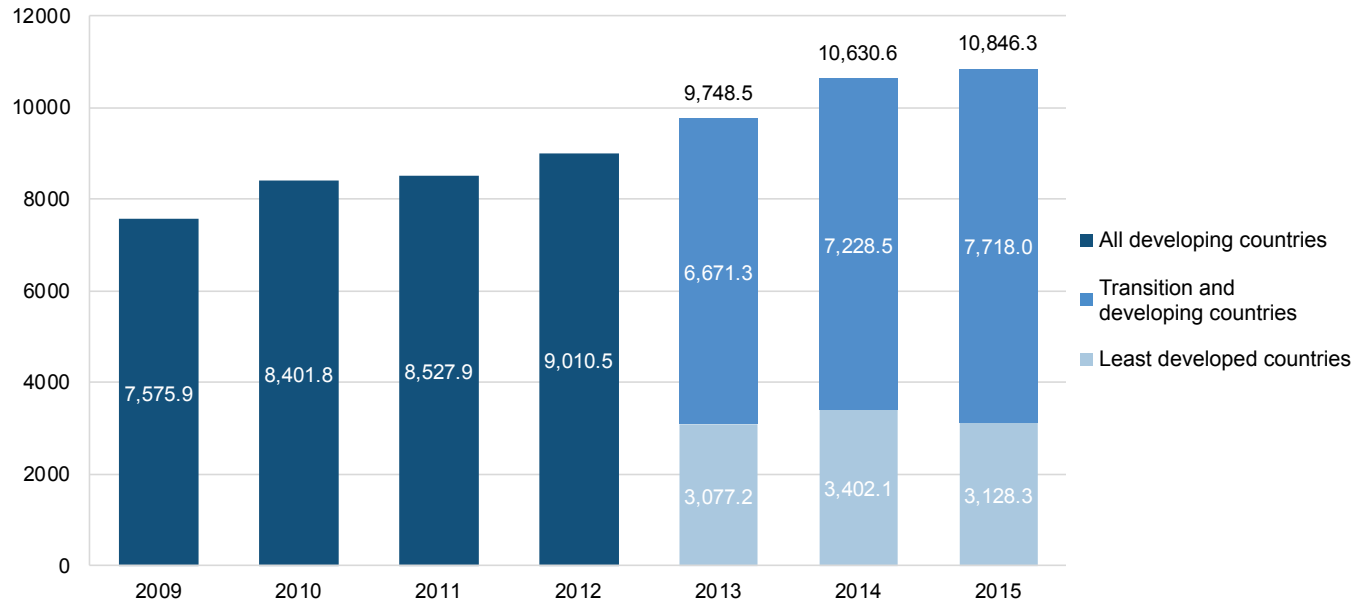
United Nations procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries, 2013-2015
(in millions of US dollars)



In 2015, procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries represented 61.7 per cent[20] of the total procurement volume, which is the same as last year. Procurement volume from least developed countries was $3.1 billion in 2015, which means that almost $18 of every $100 of procurement by UN organizations is from a least developed country. Procurement from unspecified countries decreased significantly to $35.8 million in 2015[21].

In total, procurement of goods and services from the top twenty countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries represented 38.9 per cent of overall UN procurement volume, a decrease of 1.6 percentage points from the previous year. For a detailed overview of procurement volume trends, types of goods and services procured, as well as the share of UN procurement for each of the countries listed in Table 2, please refer to the procurement profiles of these countries available from page 48 onwards.

Countries with the largest increases in procurement volume from 2005 to 2015

As previously highlighted, the share of UN procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries has risen over the last years. The procurement from some of these countries has shown a larger-than-average growth during this period (Figure 3).

The following five countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries, representing the largest increase in procurement volume, saw their combined volume increase by more than $2.45 billion over the last ten years: Afghanistan, India, Kenya, Lebanon and the United Arab Emirates. Each of these countries saw their procurement volume increase by 200 per cent or more from 2005 to 2015.

Despite the decrease in the share of procurement coming from developed countries over the last ten years, some developed countries have seen their procurement volume to the UN system grow substantially since 2005. The United States of America, with an increase of $970 million (144 per cent), and Switzerland, with an increase of $455 million (158 per cent), witnessed the largest growth among developed countries in the last ten years.

Globally, total UN procurement volume rose by $9.2 billion from 2005 to 2015, where close to 75 per cent of that increase was from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries.

Procurement by organizations of the UN system in 2014 and 2015

Despite total procurement of the UN system having increased by $337.8 million in 2015, 15 of the 36 reporting organizations witnessed a decline in their procurement volume. Eight organizations saw their procurement volume increase by more than 20 per cent over their 2014 volume.[22] UNDP and the International Labour Organization (ILO)[23] showed an increase of more than $200 million each from 2014 to 2015.[24] Figure 4 presents the procurement volume of the individual UN organizations in 2014 and 2015. The figure includes the percentage share of procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries.[25]

[22] For a detailed list of procurement of goods and services by UN organization, please refer to table “Total procurement by UN organization” available on page 102.

[23] The increase in procurement volume for the ILO is attributable to procurement related to the renovation of the ILO premises in Geneva, Switzerland.

[24] These two agencies accumulated $673.6 million in increase in procurement volume from 2014 to 2015. The IMF did not report their procurement volume for 2015, which affected the total procurement volume negatively with $293.2 million compared to 2014.

[25] The right column in Figure 4 shows the percentage of the 2015 procurement volume from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries.

Figure 5 displays the procurement volume by the ten largest UN organizations, which as a group represented 90.2 per cent of the overall procurement volume of the UN system[26]. The figure also shows the 2014 and 2015 share of procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and least developed countries. Organizations are listed in descending order by total procurement volume in 2015. In total, procurement from these countries increased by $588 million from the top ten organizations.

Procurement by sectors of categories of goods and services[27]

In recent years, a majority of the UN system's procurement has come from countries with developing economies. The following category analysis provides an overview of the distribution of categories of goods and services, indicating which categories are predominantly procured from developed countries and which categories are predominantly procured from the group of developing economies.

In 2015, 31 different segments of goods and services were widely procured from countries with developing economies (Figure 6). For each of those 31 categories, at least 66 per cent of the procurement volume came from countries with economy in transition, developing countries and least developed countries, and represented more than $5.5 billion of the 2015 procurement volume. Thirteen categories had more than 80 per cent of their procurement volume originating from countries with economy in transition, developing countries and least developed countries.

In contrast, five different categories of goods and services were largely procured from countries with developed countries, representing more than $1.0 billion of the 2015 procurement volume of the UN. For each of these five categories, approximately two-thirds of the procurement volume was from developed countries. For more detailed analysis on categories procurement by the UN system, please see section on Procurement by sectors and categories of goods and services, page 36.

Sustainable procurement reporting in the UN System

With its purchasing power of more than $17 billion annually, the UN system has the potential to significantly advance sustainable development through its procurement practices. This opportunity was further reinforced with the adoption of the Sustainable Development Goals in 2015, which include targets for sustainable consumption and production. From the data collected from this year's sustainability survey, there is a clear trend on the part of UN organizations to adopt or strengthen their ability to implement sustainable procurement. However, opportunities exist to advance the adoption of sustainable practices further along in the supply chain.

The sustainable procurement[28] (SP) reporting section of the ASR provides a baseline against which progress on the integration of SP in the UN system can be measured. As in previous years, in 2015, the number of reporting organizations increased once more to 32 out of 36, which represents a response rate of 88 per cent. From the data collected, 91 per cent of reporting organizations noted pursuing some sort of SP activity, with the large majority focused on the development of a policy (41 per cent) or programme (41 per cent).

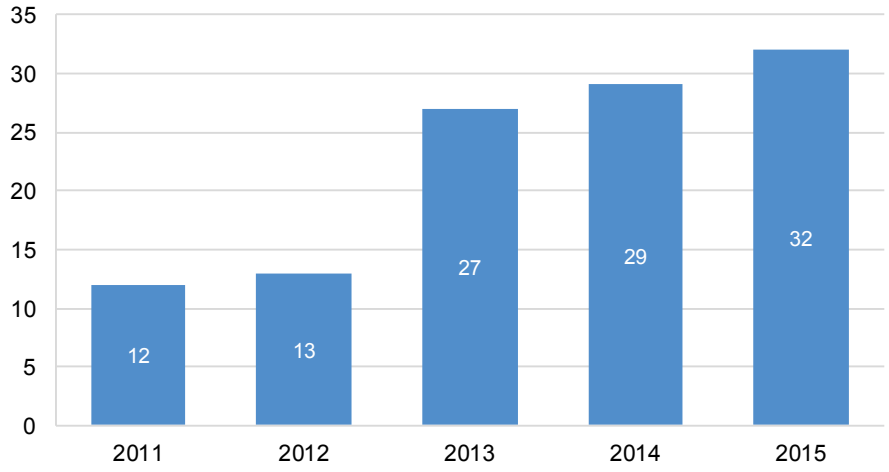
Organizations reporting on sustainable procurement, 2011-2015
(in number of organizations)



Note: Based on the number of organizations which answered the SP survey. The main reason for the increase in the number of organizations reporting in 2015 is due to a move in the SP reporting methodology to an online format.

Analysing how SP is integrated in the procurement process, 2015 data reveals that an increasing number of UN organizations reported to have begun using whole life costing in the financial evaluations of their tenders (31 per cent more organizations than in 2014). In addition, sustainability aspects were increasingly embedded into contract terms (21 per cent more organizations than in 2014) and requirements definitions (6.7 per cent more organizations than in 2014). Environmental criteria continued to be the default application in requirements definitions (used by 23 organizations), whereas social or economic sustainability ones were less used (used by 15 and 18 organizations respectively). The percentage of organizations that trained their staff on SP, or made additional investments in capacity, also rose significantly over the previous year.

As in 2014, the 2015 data showed that increased collaboration with suppliers to encourage the adoption of more sustainable practices in the supply chain (for example, by verifying adherence with the supplier code of conduct or conducting additional sustainability pre-screenings), is still early in its implementation.

The analysis of the upstream of procurement from UNGC participants revealed an absolute decrease of 4 per cent to a total of 21 per cent in 2015. This decrease, however, was mainly due to the end of a UNGC moratorium on annual reporting for small and medium enterprise participants at the end of 2014, resulting in a large number of UNGC participants being removed. Importantly, the noted decrease was not uniformly distributed across all regions, as the value of procurement from UNGC participants based in Northern America increased during the reporting year.

[28] According to the UN High Level Committee on Management Procurement Network (HLCM PN), "Sustainable Procurement practices integrate requirements, specifications and criteria that are compatible and in favour of the protection of the environment, of social progress and in support of economic development, namely by seeking resource efficiency, improving the quality of products and services and ultimately optimizing costs". As adopted by the HLCM Procurement Network meeting in Vienna, February, 2009

Total procurement by country groupings

The 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, adopted by the international community through General Assembly Resolution A/RES/70/1 (2015) in New York in September 2015, sets out an ambitious path through 17 Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) to eradicate poverty, fight inequalities and tackle climate change, while ensuring that no one is left behind[29]. Nearly half of the population of the 48 least developed countries (LDCs) remain in extreme poverty as the UN takes on this global challenge in 2016. The ASR has reported an increase in procurement to the UN system from both developing countries and countries with economies in transition since the 2005 report. This year, the ASR has begun to report on an additional country grouping - least developed countries - where shortfalls identified from the SDG targets are the greatest.

United Nations procurement from developed countries, countries with economies in transition and developing countries, and LDCs, 2013-2015 (in millions of US dollars)

In 2015, procurement from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and LDCs combined increased by $215.9 million, where procurement from least developed countries decreased by $274 million over 2014 (Figure 8). However, compared to the previous year, the share of procurement from all developing economies has remained level with the 2014 share of 61.7 per cent, with procurement from LDCs representing a share of 17.8 per cent, a decrease from 19.7 per cent in 2014 (Figure 9). The share of developing countries and economies in transition has been steadily increasing over the last three years, from 41.5 per cent in 2013 to 43.9 per cent in 2015[30].

[30] Procurement from unspecified countries was $43 million in 2015.

The distribution of goods and services procurement differs between the different country groupings (Figure 10). For developed countries, developing countries and countries with economies in transition, the distribution between goods and services has remained consistent around 50 per cent over the last three years. For LDCs, the distribution between services and goods has also been consistent at 70/30 per cent; this is due to the fact that the UN procures significantly more services than goods from these countries.

Figure 11 displays the top ten procurement volumes among UN organizations in 2015[31], including procurement from LDCs as a share of total procurement volume in 2014 and 2015. Organizations are listed in descending order by total procurement volume in 2015.

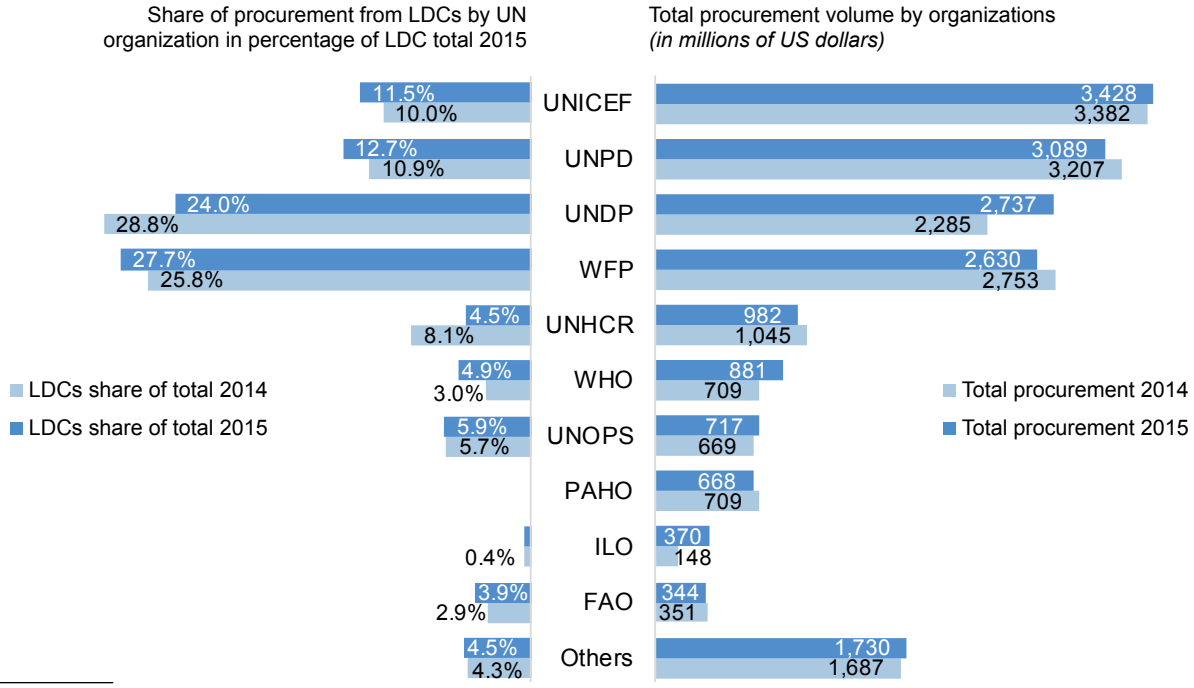
Procurement by top ten organizations of the UN system from LDCs in 2015



[31] Ranking is based on the individual organizations procurement volume in relation to the total UN procurement volume, 2015.

Together, this top ten represented 90.2 per cent of overall procurement volume of the UN system in 2015 and 95.5 per cent of the UN system's procurement from LDCs. Procurement from LDCs decreased by $266 million from the top ten organizations compared to 2014.

Country group procurement by category

In 2015, UN organizations reported 34 per cent of their procurement volume on a United Nations Standard Products and Services Code® (UNSPSC®) segment level, with remaining 66 per cent reported on family level or lower, which provides further details into the categories of goods and services procured. In all, procurement was reported against all 57 UNSPSC® segments and 361 families, out of a possible 466 families.[32].

Figure 12 looks at the UN system's procurement volume at a UNSPSC® segment level, articulating procurement into five high-level segment groups. The figure shows that procurement from developed countries is dominated by services and end-use products, with a combined share of 89 per cent. Procurement from countries with economies in transition and developing countries follows a comparable distribution, where services and end-use products together made up 81 per cent of total volume. For LDCs, procurement of end-use products has a significantly smaller share of the total volume compared to both the other two country groups. Furthermore, the share of procurement of raw material and services is higher compared to the other country groups.

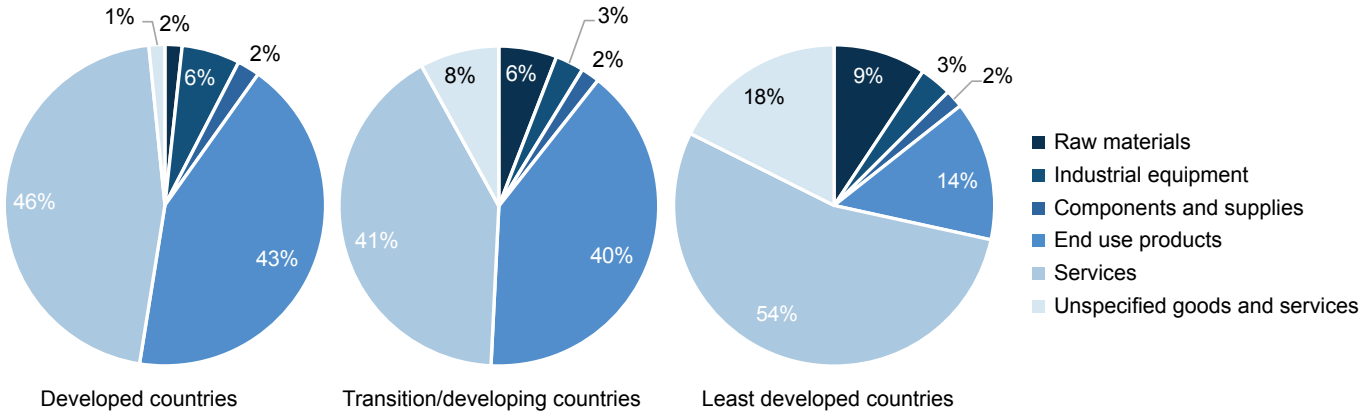

Figure 13 shows the distribution of 46 UNSPSC® family categories, each accounting for $50 million and more of the UN's total procurement volume in 2015[33]. At this more detailed family level, a few categories stand out with a particularly high share of procurement from developed countries or countries with economies in transition and developing countries, and LDCs.

Of the 46 UNSPSC® family categories displayed, 18 have more than 50 per cent of their total volume originating from developed countries. Fifteen of the UNSPSC® family categories have more than 50 per cent of their procurement volume from both developing countries and countries with economies in transition, and a total of 28 UNSPSC® family categories have more than half of their total procurement volume coming from countries with economies in transition, developing countries and LDCs combined.

[32] UNSPSC® Segment is the highest level of the category hierarchy, with Family representing the next highest level. In all, UNSPSC® has four hierarchy levels.

[33] Remaining 315 family categories had a procurement volume below $50 million in 2015.

LDCs supplying UN organizations

The classification of LDCs was officially established by the UN General Assembly in 1971 as the UN began to focus on the most vulnerable and disadvantaged members of the UN system. Special measures were incorporated in their favour in the International Development Strategy for the UN in the 1970s. The First United Nations Conference on the LDCs was held in Paris in 1981, adopting a new programme of action for the LDCs. Continuing on that decision, the Programme of Action for the Least Developed Countries for the Decade 2011-2020 was adopted by the Fourth UN Conference on the Least Developed Countries in Istanbul from 9-13 May 2011. The current list of LDCs includes 48 countries[34], and they comprise more than 880 million people (approximately 12 per cent of world's population), but account for less than 2 per cent of world's GDP and about 1 per cent of the global trade in goods.

In total, the UN system's procurement of goods and services from LDCs represented 17.8 per cent of overall UN procurement volume in 2015 (Table 3). The largest countries in terms of supply to the UN are Afghanistan, Ethiopia and Sudan. For more information on what the UN procured from these countries, please see the country profile pages for the respective country[35].

A further analysis of the ten largest categories of goods and services procured from LDCs (Table 4), shows that the largest procurement volume of services in these countries is: cargo and passenger transportation (11 per cent); building and maintenance services (4 per cent): and management and admin services (3 per cent). Procurement of goods from LDCs is mainly focused on fuels (3 per cent) and medical equipment (1 per cent)

Sustainable procurement in the UN system

2015 Annual Statistical Report on United Nations Procurement

Sustainable procurement in the UN system

Introduction

According to the High-Level Committee on Management Procurement Network: “Sustainable Procurement practices integrate requirements, specifications and criteria that are compatible and in favour of the protection of the environment, of social progress and in support of economic development, namely by seeking resource efficiency, improving the quality of products and services and ultimately optimizing costs”.[37]

With its purchasing power of more than $17 billion each year, the UN system has significant potential to help develop and shift local markets towards achieving more sustainable outcomes. In 2015, this opportunity was further reinforced with the adoption of the SDGs, which include targets for sustainable consumption and production.[38]

In 2015, more UN organizations participated in the voluntary survey than in previous years, confirming that sustainable procurement (SP) continues to factor increasingly into procurement decisions within the UN system. For the 2015 reporting period, 32 out of 36 organizations responded to the survey, collectively representing 79 per cent of the total 2015 UN spend of $17.6 billion.

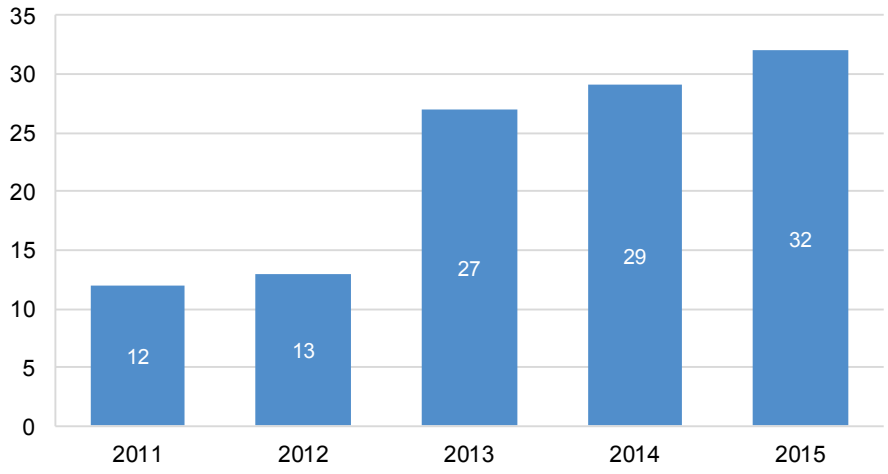
Organizations reporting on sustainable procurement, 2011-2015
(in number of organizations)



Note: Based on the number of organizations which answered the SP survey. The main reason for the increase in the number of organizations reporting in 2015 is due to a move in the SP reporting methodology to an online format.

[37] High-Level Committee on Management Procurement Network (HLCM-PN) (2009) – Sustainable Procurement Statement, Adopted by the HLCM Procurement Network meeting in Vienna, February 2009.

[38] SDG 12 provides that the member states will promote public procurement practices that are sustainable, in accordance with national policies and priorities. For more information, please see: https://sustainabledevelopment.un.org/sdg12.

Policy and strategy

The existence of an SP policy provides a sound basis on which to build a coherent, well-coordinated approach. This can enable the organization to formally communicate its intentions to both personnel and suppliers.

From the data collected through this year's survey, there is a clear trend on the part of UN organizations to consider, adopt or strengthen sustainable procurement practices in their operations, through the development of an SP policy or programme (Figure 14). This number increased from 58 per cent in 2014 to 82 per cent in 2015. In addition, the number of reporting organizations not having implemented some sort of SP initiative decreased by more than half from 21 per cent in 2014 to 9 per cent in 2015.

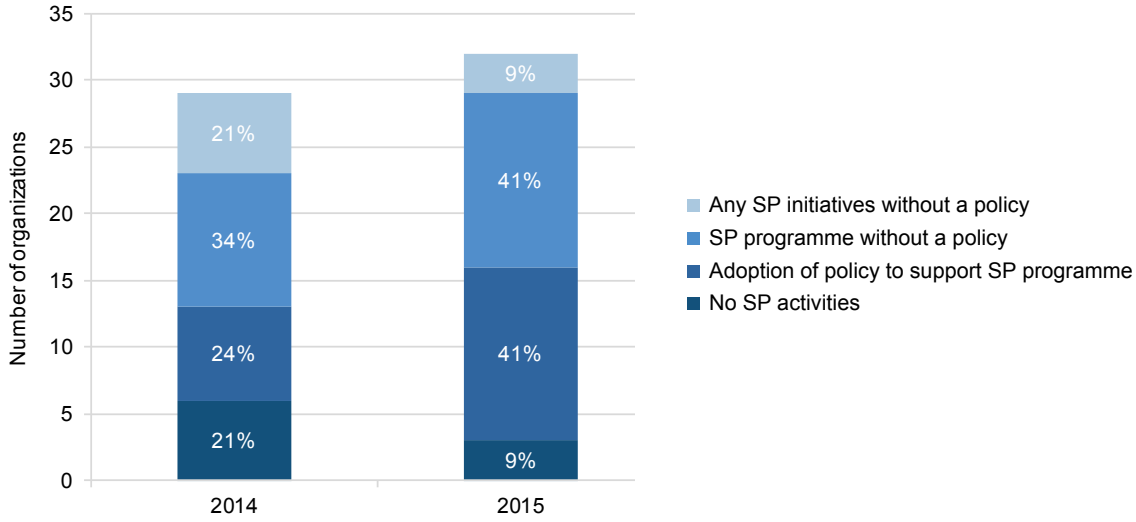
Status of SP policy or programme adoption (2014-2015)
(in percentage of reporting organizations)



SP integration in the procurement process

The following framework for integrating sustainability considerations into the procurement process focuses on three key areas: embedding sustainability criteria[39] into requirements definitions; using or considering whole life costing[40] in the financial evaluation; and including sustainability aspects in contract terms.

Compared to 2014, when integrating sustainability criteria into the requirements definitions was the most prevalent action taken by organizations, the data collected from this year's survey noted that organizations have increasingly begun to use whole life costing in the financial evaluations of their tenders, in addition to embedding sustainability aspects into contract terms (Figure 15).

These trends indicate an evolution in the way that organizations integrate SP, and are further supported by the fact that organizations have begun to embed sustainability considerations into a greater percentage of their tenders (Figure 16). Importantly, however, in 2015 environmental criteria continued to be preferred over social or economic sustainability ones (Figure 17). This conclusion is consistent with 2014 findings.

[39] Sample sustainability criteria suggested in the survey included: 1) environmental: energy or water efficiency, reduced waste or greenhouse gas emissions, limited packaging or similar; 2) social: hiring local labour, local capacity building or similar; and 3) reconsidering the need to buy, or similar.

[40] The definition of whole-life costing included in the survey: "the sum of all recurring and one-time costs over the full life span of a good, service, structure, or system. It includes purchase price, installation cost, operating costs, maintenance and repair/upgrade costs and remaining residual or salvage value at the end of ownership or its useful life".

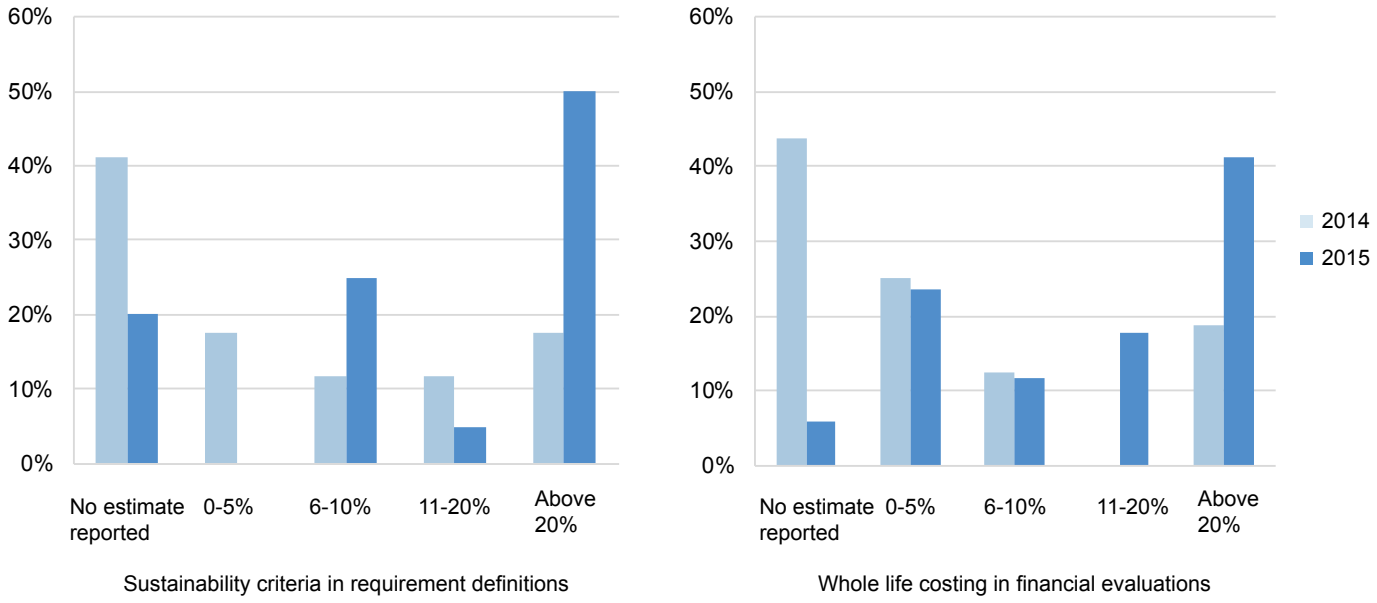
(in percentage of reporting organizations and their respective tenders)



[41] Many of the organizations that responded to the survey noted that their internal enterprise resource planning systems are not set up to track the amount of SP conducted by their offices. As a result, the numbers provided in the report are estimates.

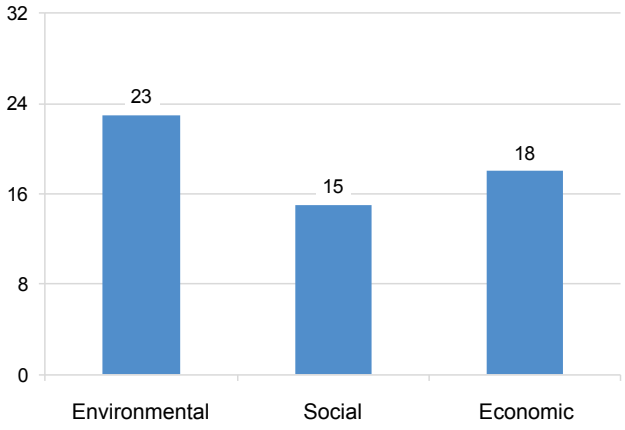
(in percentage of reporting organizations and their respective tenders)



Internal capacity development

Developing internal capacity through training and support is an important aspect of successfully integrating and advancing SP in procurement processes. According to the data collected through this year's survey, reporting organizations recognized this fact and acted on it. The percentage of organizations that trained their personnel on SP rose from 34 per cent in 2014 to 53 per cent in 2015 (Figure 18).

In addition to training personnel, in 2015, 11 reporting organizations noted that they had made or planned to make additional investments (other than training) to enhance their own capacity to incorporate sustainability into their procurement processes. Some of these investments included: the development of supplier questionnaires, supplier training programmes and guidance documents, the development of paperless procurement systems and processes, and relevant policy updates.

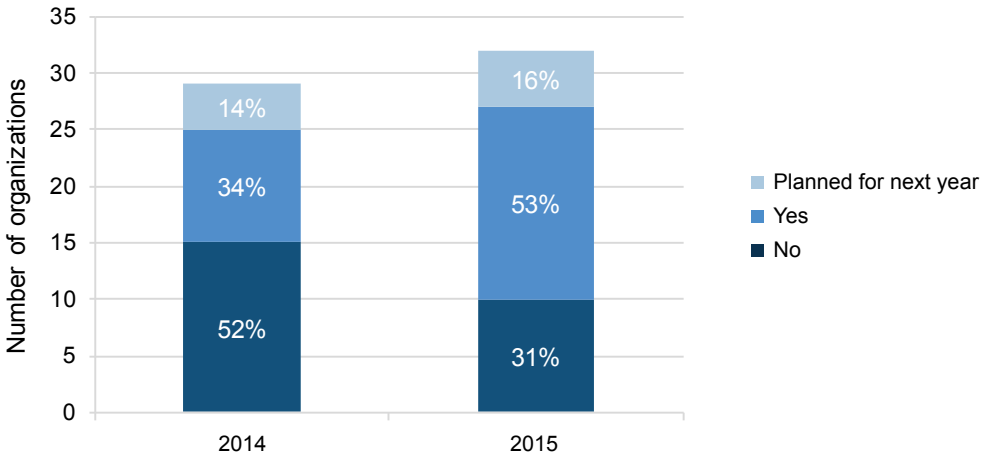
SP training interventions (2014-2015)
(in number and percentage of reporting organizations)



[42] Please see footnote #40.

Supply chain development

Reporting organizations were also asked to provide additional information on what they are doing to develop their supply chains and the sustainability of their suppliers. Suppliers can play an important role in influencing the environmental, social and economic impacts of the supply chain through their control of production and shipping processes. The UN Supplier Code of Conduct (UNSOC)[43] establishes the minimum expectations of suppliers vis-à-vis labour, human rights, the environment and ethical conduct. By ensuring that suppliers endorse and comply with the UNSOC, for example, through verification, additional pre-screenings or direct collaboration with suppliers, organizations can mitigate potential risks and promote sustainability across the entire value chain.

From the data collected through this year's survey (Figure 19), verification of adherence to the UNSOC has only just begun. 52 per cent of reporting organizations noted that they actively verify compliance, for example, through the use of a pre-qualification questionnaire, whereas 25 per cent and 38 per cent of organizations, respectively, conduct additional pre-screenings[44] or collaborate with suppliers to enhance the sustainability of their supply chains[45].

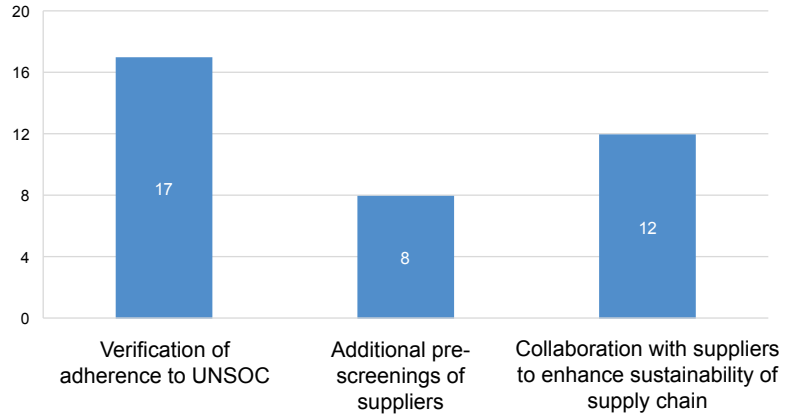
Supplier engagement on sustainability[46]
(in number of reporting organizations by type of engagement activity)



[43] See: www.un.org/Depts/ptd/about-us/un-supplier-code-conduct

[44] Additional pre-screenings included adding supplier sustainability criteria to tender documents to be reviewed during the evaluation phase, site visits, using third party industry reports, including sustainability clauses to contracts, or requesting additional documentation.

[45] Collaborations included sourcing from local and small scale suppliers, conducting workshops, and leading initiatives to reduce packaging.

[46] This question was modified from the previous year. As such, comparative data was not available for this year's report.

UN procurement from Global Compact participants

The UN Global Compact (UNGC) is a voluntary standard for corporate sustainability, and a call to companies to align their strategies and operations with universal principles on human rights, labour, the environment and anti-corruption. The UN actively encourages all suppliers to embrace the UNGC's ten principles[47] and to become a UNGC participant[48]. Participation in the UNGC is dependent upon the submission of an annual report, which details the work participants have accomplished in the previous year to demonstrate or advance their commitment to the UNGC principles.

As in previous years, purchase order data collected through the Annual Statistical Report was cross referenced with the list of UNGC participants, to determine the share of UN procurement from UNGC participants[49] (Figure 20), as well as important regional differences (Figures 21 and 22).

In sum, while total procurement spend for the UN system increased only slightly, the share of procurement from UNGC participants decreased by 4 per cent over the previous year, to a total of 21 per cent in 2015. This decrease is due to the fact that the UNGC disqualified more companies than average in 2015, following the end of a moratorium at the end of 2014.[50]

Importantly, however, the noted decrease in procurement from UNGC participants was not uniformly distributed across all regions (Figure 21). For example in Northern America, the share of procurement from UNGC participants, as a percentage of total procurement for that region, actually increased. Consistent with previous years, suppliers based in Europe and Northern America continued to play an increasingly dominant role in the percentage of total procurement from UNGC participants, accounting for approximately 77 per cent, up 4 per cent from 2014.

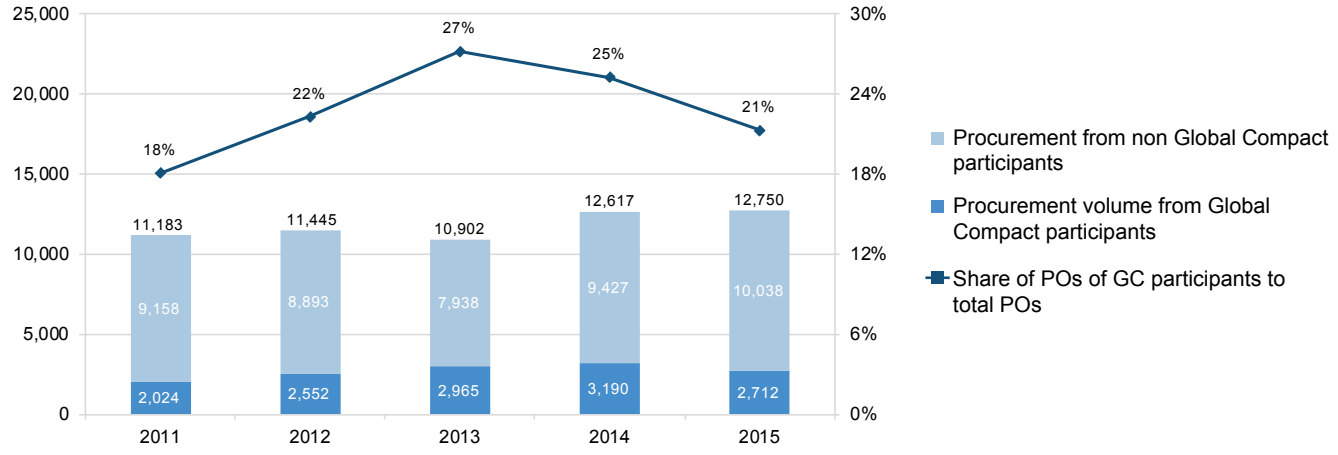
Share of UN procurement from Global Compact participants (2011-2015)[51]
(in millions of US dollars and percentage of total UN procurement, for orders > $30,000)



[47] For more information on the UN Global Compact principles, please see: https://www.unglobalcompact.org/what-is-gc/mission/principles.

[48] UNGC participants are required to make a public commitment to sustainability and to report annually on their progress through the development of a Communication on Progress Report, which is submitted directly to the UNGC.

[49] A minimum threshold for purchase orders was set at $30,000 to ensure comparability with previous years (as mentioned in the methodology section above). The date is based on the UNGC participant list as of 31 December 2015

[50] In response to the low engagement of small- and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) in the initiative, at the end of 2012 the UNGC launched the 'SME Moratorium', a pilot programme that extended the reporting deadline for all SMEs by one year, during which the UNGC and its Local Networks would implement a programme specifically tailored to SMEs. As part of this programme the UNGC: grew its support team in New York; developed SME-specific material around sustainability implementation and reporting; conducted workshops for SMEs locally through its local networks; and did not expel any SMEs during 2013 in the hope that the programme would engage them. After two years of implementation, the pilot did not succeed in augmenting engagement rates among SMEs. With less than 2 per cent of SMEs covered by the pilot programme showing timid signs of enhanced engagement, the UNGC ended the moratorium at the end of 2014. This resulted in an increased number of SME expulsions during 2015 because the pilot programme created a backlog of SMEs that would have been expelled during 2013 and 2014. Regular rates of expulsions were restored by the end of 2015. The UNGC continues to succeed in recruiting SMEs with about 70 per cent of new joiners being SMEs globally and in 2016 the UNGC launched a simplified reporting process for SMEs.

[51] Purchase orders under $30,000 or from suppliers whose names were removed (for example, out of security concerns) were excluded from this analysis. Supplier names are essential in order to cross reference this data with the list of UNGC participants.

Sustainable Procurement Outlook for 2016

SP and by extension sustainable development continue to be an important priority for the UN system. The graph below (Figure 23) notes the planned SP activities of reporting organizations for 2016, the majority of which focus on the development of a policy in support of SP.

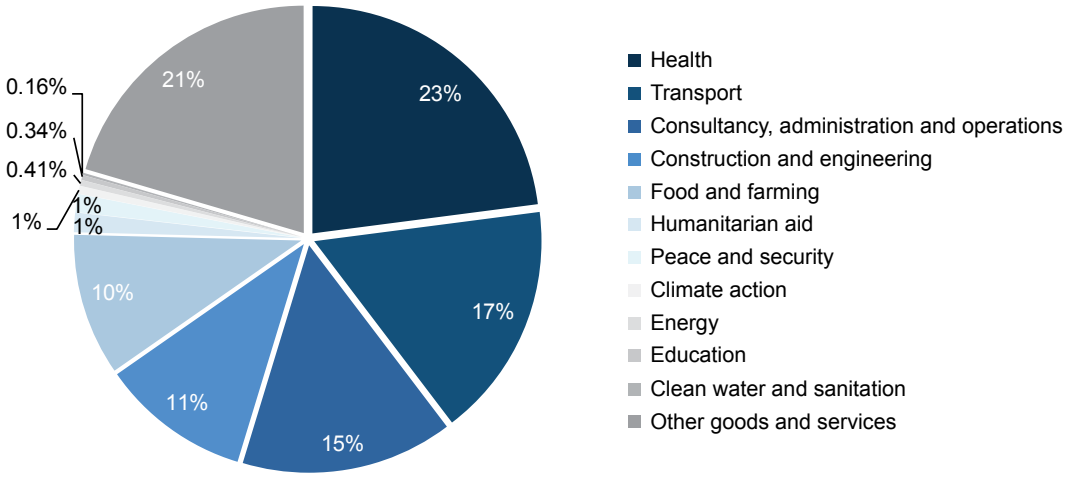
Procurement by sectors and categories of goods and services

Total procurement by sectors of goods and services

Procurement of goods and services by the UN system falls into a wide variety of categories, which can be grouped into sectors that relate to different areas of procurement, all of which support the activities of UN organizations. For this year's report, the sectors of categories have been updated to provide analysis in line with the current focus within the UN and its procurement operations. Each sector includes goods and services categories from different UNSPSC® segments and families. Figure 24 shows the distribution of UN system procurement across the largest sectors of goods and services categories.

Figure 24

Distribution of UN procurement by sector, 2015
(in percentage of total 2015 volume)



In 2015, the health sector continued to be the largest sector in terms of procurement volume (which includes procurement of pharmaceuticals, healthcare services, and medical and laboratory equipment) with a share of 23 per cent of overall procurement last year. This is an increase of 2 percentage points over 2014.

The transport sector (transport services and motor vehicles) is the second-largest sector of procurement for the UN system, with 17 per cent in 2015, compared to 16 per cent in 2014. The consultancy, administration and operations sector was the third-largest sector at 15 per cent of total UN procurement in 2015. This sector is new to this year's report, and includes both goods and services within the areas of consultancy, administration and operations either directly procured in relation to ongoing programmes and projects, or for administrative services or operations support to UN activities. It therefore broadens last year's sector, management and administrative services, which had 10 per cent of the procurement volume in 2014.

Construction and engineering (construction supplies and services, engineering services, structures), and food and farming (food, beverage, live plants and animals, farming accessories and services), are the two next-largest sectors with a share of approximately 10 to 11 per cent of total UN procurement volume in 2015. Both sectors had a volume of 11 per cent in 2014.

A sixth sector, fuels and fuel additives, was reported separately in 2013 and 2014 and this year is included in the grouping of other goods and services. Other goods and services represented 21 per cent of the total in 2015, compared to 27 per cent in 2014; this decrease mainly reflects re-categorization of the sectors in this year's report. A further six additional sectors are added to this year's report, in order to provide analysis and trends within procurement of these sectors over the coming years. This is being done in an attempt to align with procurement focus areas and to reflect the new Sustainable Development Goals. The new sectors are: humanitarian aid; peace and security; climate action; energy; education; and clean water and sanitation. Procurement within categories that are directly related to these sectors represents approximately 4 per cent of total UN procurement in 2015.

Detailed procurement of the top five sectors by UNSPSC® family

Due to the availability of more accurate and detailed data provided by participating UN organizations, this section of the report will for the first time provide more detailed analysis on categories procured, with focus on the five largest sectors. Combined, the five-largest sectors of procurement account for 76 per cent (69 per cent in 2014) of total procurement of the UN system in 2015. This section of the report will provide further details of each sector, analysing main categories, major supplier countries and the largest procuring organizations within each sector.

The following analysis in based on goods and services categorization provided on the UN Standard Products and Services Code® UUNSPSC® family level[54]. For 2015, more than 66 per cent of all reported UN procurement is provided on this more detailed level of the UNSPSC® classification. Thirty-four per cent of reported data still remains on a more general level and will be displayed as "general goods and services" within each sector.

Health sector

The top ten categories procured within the health sector are listed in order of procurement volume in Table 6 below. The table also provides information on the largest procuring organization and the share of that organization within that individual category.

As can be seen in the table, PAHO is procuring almost all Immunomodulating drugs that the UN procures, which is the largest single category under the health sector. Comprehensive health services, the second largest category, are predominantly procured by WHO. Clinical nutrition is nearly 100 per cent procured by UNICEF, and contraceptives are almost exclusively procured by UNFPA. Remaining top ten categories show a larger spread of Figure 25 shows the share of top ten categories in relation to total UN health procurement. Together, these top ten categories represent 42 per cent of overall health procurement in the UN system. 56 per cent of the procurement volume for health procurement was not reported on a UNSPSC® family level. Ninety-three per cent of this 56 per cent portion not categorized on the family-level represents UNICEF's health procurement, which consists predominantly of vaccines[55]. An additional 2 per cent of that is procurement volume by WHO and is categorized as health care services.

Five UN organizations are responsible for 95 per cent of all UN health procurement in 2015 (Table 7). The main procuring organization in this sector is UNICEF, with 56 per cent of the total volume. Vaccines account for nearly half of UNICEF's total procurement expenditure in 2015.

PAHO and WHO procure 15 and 14 per cent of all health goods and services respectively in 2015.

India is the main country of supply for the health sector, where $994 million in health procurement originated from in 2015. This represents 25 per cent of total health procurement for the UN system last year. The top five supplier countries within this sector supply the UN system with 68 per cent of all goods and services related to health. The second- and third-largest supplier countries, the United States of America and Belgium, provide approximately 15 per cent of goods and services within the health sector. Together the top-three countries supply more than 50 per cent of all health procurement. All top five health supplier countries have pharmaceuticals as their largest category within health.

Transport

Table 9 provides information on the top ten categories procured within the transport sector, together with largest procuring organization, including the share of that organization within that category. The largest category within transport is mail and cargo transportation, with WFP responsible for 76 per cent of all procurement within that category. WFP is also responsible for 65 per cent of all procurement of storage, and are the top organization with regard to other transport-related categories. The second-largest category within this sector is passenger transportation, with UNPD responsible for 76 per cent of total 2015 volume within that category. The third-largest transport category is motor vehicles, with UNOPS responsible for 26 per cent of 2015 volume.

Construction and engineering

The main category within this sector is professional engineering services with a total volume of $435.7 million (Table 15). UNOPS is the largest procuring organization with 49 per cent of total procurement in that category.

The International Labour Organization (ILO) procured 59 per cent of all building and facility maintenance and repair services in 2015. This in mainly attributable to the renovation of ILO's headquarters' facilities in Geneva, which also led to a 150 per cent increase of ILO total procurement volume compared to previous year.

The third-largest category, nonresidential building construction services, the main procuring organization is UNPD with 56 per cent of the total in this category. UNPD is also the largest organization in other categories in the top ten, in particular with portable buildings and structures, where UNPD volume is nearly 100 per cent of the total.

UNHCR procures more than 90 per cent of both structural materials and lamps and lightbulbs and lamp components.

Together the top ten categories represent 77 per cent of total procurement in this sector (Figure 28). Eighteen per cent in this sector is not reported at a UNSPSC® family level. Professional engineering services account for 23 per cent of total procurement, and building and facility maintenance and repair services account for 21 per cent. Non-residential building construction services represent 14 per cent and the remaining categories each have a share of 5 per cent or less.

Five UN organizations have a combined volume of 74 per cent of all UN procurement in the sector of construction and engineering in 2015. The main procuring organization in this sector is UNPD, procuring 20 per cent of all construction and engineering goods and services (Table 16). Food and Farming

The food and farming sector has a strong relation to some organizations' mandates, similarly to the health sector. Table 18 shows that the majority of top ten categories within the food sector have one UN organization procuring between 95 and 100 per cent of that category. UNPD procures 96 per cent of all prepared and preserved foods, while the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) procures most of the unprocessed foods and agricultural categories. The United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees in the Near East (UNRWA) procures almost a 100 per cent of all cereals, dairy products, and edible oils and fats. The Pan American Health Organization (PAHO) procures 76 per cent of all pest-control products. The only category within the top ten categories without a dominant organization is agricultural and forestry machinery and equipment, where FAO procures 36 per cent.

The top ten categories represent 36 per cent of total procurement (Figure 29), while 60 per cent of procurement in this sector was not at a UNSPSC® family level. The category “prepared and preserved foods” is by far the largest with 26 per cent of the total of the top ten family-level categories. The distribution between the remaining categories is dispersed, with categories covering 2 per cent or less of total procurement within this sector.

Almost all procurement (98 per cent) of food and farming categories is covered by five UN organizations (Table 19). The main procuring organization of food is WFP, procuring 60 per cent of all goods and services in this sector. The WFP reports all their food procurement as ‘General food procurement’, resulting in all of the ‘General goods and services food and farming’ in Figure 29, is food from WFP. This is also reflected in table 18, where WFP does not show as one of the largest procuring agencies.

For procurement volume reported on a UNSPSC® family level, UNPD is the largest organization with 25 per cent of all food procurement in 2015; almost all of this volume is prepared and preserved foods. FAO procures 6 per cent of all food and farming related goods and services, procuring goods and services that are predominantly related to agriculture. UNRWA is responsible for 5 per cent of total food and farming procurement and UNDP for 2 per cent.

Distribution of countries and territories

The country, regional and/or territorial distributions presented are for statistical convenience only and follow those used by the Statistics Division, Department of Economic and Social Affairs (DESA) of the United Nations. They are grouped by economic criteria or membership of trade agreements for the purposes of statistical analysis and research.

There is no established convention for the designation of “developed” and “developing” countries or areas in the United Nations system. In common practice, Israel and Japan in Asia, Bermuda, Canada, Greenland, Saint Pierre et Miquelon, and the United States in northern America, Australia and New Zealand in Oceania, and Europe are considered “developed” regions or areas. This report includes all UN member states divided into four major categories: developing countries, transition economies, least developed countries and developed countries.

The designations employed do not imply the expression of any opinion whatsoever on the part of the United Nations concerning the legal status of any country, territory, city or area, or of its authorities, or concerning the delimitation of its frontiers or boundaries. They are intended for statistical convenience and do not necessarily express a judgement about the stage reached by a particular country or area in the development process.
